Soviet Tanks, Planes Sent To Algerians

Egyptian Troops On Way, Concerned Diplomats Report

ALGIERS (AP)—Western diplomats said Sunday Soviet tanks and planes have arrived in Algeria aboard a Cuban ship and that shiploads of Egyptian troops and arms were en route to help Algeria in its Sahara Desert border conflict with Morocco. The diplomats said they were concerned that a major world crisis might erupt.

An authoritative source said U.S. Ambassador William J. Porter had seen President Ahmed ben Bella Saturday and personally expressed concern about the possibility that the undeclared border war might blossom into a conflict involving other nations.

Moroccan Successes

In Morocco military spokesmen reported Moroccan planes and troops had pushed back a stream of Algerian reinforcements trying to reach forward outposts under siege.

The Moroccans claimed—and American newsmen confirmed—that the Moroccans routed the remnants of three Algerian battalions at Hassi Beida and now control the entire area around the disputed oasis.

Prisoners and hundreds of Soviet weapons were captured.

Despite Moroccan claims that Algerian casualties were heavy and Moroccan losses light, three planeloads of wounded Moroccan troops landed at the military air base in Marrakech, Morocco. Newsmen there counted 70 cases, only a few of them on stretchers.

Plans were being pushed for a summit conference for peace scheduled for Tuesday in Bamako, Mali, with Ben Bella, King Hassan II of Morocco, Emperor Haile Selassie of Ethiopia and President Modibo Keita of Mali sitting in.

Area Contains Minerals

Algeria and Morocco are fighting over an area recently found to possess mineral resources along the ill-defined border between southeastern Morocco and southwestern Algeria.

The diplomatic sources here said a Cuban ship had arrived in the Algerian port of Oran Friday with modern Soviet tanks and crated jet fighters.

These informants said the Egyptians were sending parachute troops recently withdrawn from the counterrevolutionary war waged by royalists in Yemen against the Egyptian-backed republican government there.

MILESTONE—Dr. Michael E. DeBakey, of Houston, Tex., displays model of a plastic heart which he described at an American Heart Association meeting in Los Angeles yesterday. The artificial heart pump, used for a human for the first time, extended a dying man's life four days. (AP Photofax)

Plastic Heart Extends Man's Life Four Days

LOS ANGELES (AP) — The dying man's heart kept stopping. Surgeons conferred, wheeled him into an operating room—and created history.

For the first time, they put a plastic heart pump inside a human chest to do part of the heart's work.

The substitute pump brought temporary benefit, and the man lived four more days.

But heart surgeons had crossed the frontier toward a future and tremendously dramatic goal of substituting mechanical hearts inside the body for ailing human hearts.

Dr. Michael Debakey of Houston, Tex., described this first human case of an implantable heart pump Sunday to the American Heart Association. He was among a panel of specialists predicting what heart research may accomplish in the next 10 years, if research continues at a vigorous pace.

In the operation last July 19, the Houston surgeons by-passed the man's own left ventricle, the heart chamber that sends blood coursing through the body.

A length of plastic tubing of special shape was connected to the man's left atrium — the chamber collecting blood returning from the lungs—and to the aorta, the main artery out of the heart. This by-passed the man's own defective left ventricle.

Outside the man's closed chest, a pump pulsed air through a thin tube connected to the implanted plastic heart chamber. The air pressure rhythemically squeezed and relaxed the plastic chamber so it could pulse blood into the aorta, as the man's own ventricle should have been doing.

"It showed the technique is feasible," Dr. Debakey said in an amplifying news conference. "The equipment had been designed for experiments in dogs Since then we have improved it, and plan further human operations in selected cases."

Girl's Kidnaper Eludes Police

LANSING, Mich. (AP) — Police pressed the search Sunday for the unidentified, young man suspected in five-year-old Michelle Moran's kidnaping.

Michelle, one of four children of divorcee Mrs. Donna Moran, 31, a school teacher, remained in Edward Sparrow Hospital. Her condition was reported good.

The tiny, blonde child was kidnaped from her mother's car in a shopping center parking lot in Lansing Friday night. She was found Saturday morning abandoned in a ditch three miles south of here. She had been criminally assaulted, police said.

Dominican Police Halt Rally With Gas

SANTO DOMINGO, Dominican Republic (AP) — Police fired a tear gas barrage Sunday to break up the biggest antigovernment rally in Santo Domingo since the ouster of President Juan Bosch last month. Hundreds suffered from gas inhalation and a dozen were arrested.

Buddhist Commits Fiery Suicide In Saigon

Police Trying To Save Monk Shoved Away

SAIGON, Viet Nam (AP)—A Buddhist monk hopped off the back of a motorcycle in front of a Roman Catholic cathedral Sunday, doused himself with gasoline and set himself ablaze

This the seventh Buddhist suicide by fire since June, apparently was carried out to point up to a U.N. team here Buddhist charges of persecution by the government.

A crowd of about 100 persons forming a semicircle near the flaming figure on a sidewalk shouted at police and shoved them away as they attempted to halt the suicide.

The U.N. team at the time was on the other side of the city visiting An Quang Pagoda and talking to Buddhists who have voiced support for the government of Ngo Dinh Diem, a Roman Catholic.

Team Abandons Schedule

A U.N. spokesman here said the team is breaking off its government-arranged schedule and would make its own decisions on who to talk to about charges of persecution. Presumably, the mission will seek out Buddhists who oppose Diem.

The Buddhist who committed suicide Sunday was identified by official sources as Ho Dan Van, a monk, whose age was given variously as 35 and 45.

One policeman broke through the crowd and tried to extinguish the flames by waving a straw mat. This fanned the fire and the flames shot higher.

The monk arrived at the burning scene dressed in civilian clothes. He hopped off the motorcycle and quickly squatted lotus-fashion in the street. The motorcycle with its driver drove out of sight. The monk had a container of gasoline and emptied it into his lap. Then, he struck a match.

Suicide Apparently Timed

With the fire enveloping his body, the monk bowed and raised his arms two or three times in prayer. Then the body stiffened and fell over on its right side.

The suicide had all the earmarks of having been timed to impress the U.N. fact-finding mission.

Western correspondents in Saigon received anonymous telephone calls advising them of the time and place for something to happen. This is how newsmen were informed beforehand of the previous suicides.

Blast Shatters Fireworks Plant

BELLAIRE, Ohio (AP)—Firemen sifted through debris Sunday in the wake of a shattering explosion that destroyed 82 buildings of the Ohio Fireworks Co. plant Saturday night.

Damage to the complex, located on a hilltop in this eastern Ohio community, was estimated at $300,000 by a company official.

The spokesman, Veto Presutti, said however that he expects the company to resume production in three weeks.

The explosion showered a 15-mile area with embers, skyrockets and colorful gunpowder displays and destroyed 82 of the 87 buildings on the grounds.

A maintenance worker at the plant, Michael Colpon, 51, of Bellaire, was reported in critical condition Sunday.

Khrushchev's Threat Clouds Wheat Dealings

WASHINGTON (AP) — Soviet Premier Khrushchev's public threat to by-pass the United States in his wheat purchases came as no surprise to the administration—officially.

But one official familiar with the negotiations so far conceded "the issue is snarled up more than anticipated" in the wake of Khrushchev's Saturday statement that any "discriminatory conditions" would block Soviet purchase of U.S. wheat.

The Soviet premier did not specify what he meant by "discriminatory conditions" but it was assumed here he referred to President Kennedy's Oct. 9 stipulation that exports to the Soviet Union would have to be handled in American ships, if available. This presumably would have the effect of adding about $10 a ton to the cost of the 100 to 200 million bushels of wheat.

The White House, State Department and other agencies which have been participating in the preliminary negotiations had no formal comment on Khrushchev's remarks as they appeared in the Moscow newspaper Izvestia. However, officials said the premier's objection really was only apublic statement of the position that the Soviet negotiators have been taking all along in the private discussions.

American shipping lines apparently are unimpressed by the new business opportunity and are reported to have declined the Maritime Administration's invitation to reconsider their rates.

Administration officials hinted that the government still hopes to come to terms with the shipping industry by reminding them that Kennedy's qualifying phrase of availability and the question of rates are closely linked.

First Family Attends Church Together

MIDDLEBURG, Va. (AP)—The presidential family worshipped together at public church services for the first time Sunday.

The two children were a bit restless, like most youngsters their age, but they were well behaved. And they were not banished to a soundproof vestibule where most of the infants were confined with their parents.

The President and Mrs. Kennedy, Caroline and John Jr. drove in sunny weather from their new Rattlesnake Mountain home at Atoka. It is five miles to St. Stephen the Martyr Roman Catholic Church in Middleburg.

Ginny Drifts Out To Sea; Threat All But Vanishes

WILMINGTON, N.C. (AP) — Playful hurricane Ginny, still poised with 95 mile an hour winds, drifted slowly out to sea Sunday — apparently to stay.

The Weather Bureau said even though Ginny has had erratic movements it appears now that any threat to the U.S. mainland has "all but vanished."

Gale warnings were lowered from Cape Fear to Manteo and coastal residents from Florida to North Carolina finally began to relax.

"Ginny is a dangerous hurricane and shipping should exercise caution," the Weather Bureau warned, however.

Another warning came from San Juan, Puerto Rico, as the Weather Bureau promoted Helena from a tropical depression to a tropical storm.

Helena was reported almost stationary a short distance west of Guadeloupe or 300 miles southeast of San Juan. Highest winds in the storm center were reported at 50 miles an hour with gales extending outward 120 miles.

At 11 a.m. EST, Ginny was about 170 miles south-southeast of Cape Hatteras. She was reported drifting eastward at less than 5 miles per hour. Ginny was forecast to move on an easterly course at the same speed during the next 12 hours.

Born a week ago off Cape Hatteras, Ginny may go down in history as one of the most erratic and unpredictable of hurricanes. At one time or another she pointed her destructive winds at Florida, Georgia, South Carolina and North Carolina, only to retreat.

Three Buried Iron Miners Still Alive

Flood Waters In German Pit Receding

PEINE, Germany (UPI) — Three German iron ore miners trapped underground since Thursday night gained a new lease on life Sunday when rising flood waters in their prison tomb began receding.

Earlier, as rescue workers in a sugar beet field above reamed through 262 feet of earth toward the trapped miners with an oil-well rig, one of the miners yelled into a lowered microphone:

"You've got to hurry. In eight hours we'll be drowned."

The rescue workers hope to lower an escape capsule down the two-foot hole now being drilled to haul up the trapped miners.

When the plea to hurry came from the sludge-filled air pocket, rescuers instructed the trapped men to make a mark at the level of the water on the wall of their chamber.

Two hours later, when the microphone was lowered again through a 10-inch supply hole, one of the men shouted "The water is falling!"

He said the sludgy, debris-filled water was two inches below the scratch on the rocky slope.

There were 129 miners underground when tons of muddy water roared into the mine's honeycomb of tunnels last Thursday.

Seven miners were rescued earlier, but hope for saving 39 trapped on the lowest level, 330 feet underground, has been abandoned. Seventy - nine other miners managed to scramble to safety soon after the mudslide.

The first noise from below was four knocking sounds, leading rescue crews to believe that all four men had been located.

But the three men reached by the microphone said they had no idea of the whereabouts of the fourth, and unaccounted for, miner.

The trapped trio described their chamber as nine feet tall, nine feet wide, and 300 feet long. They said it sloped gently upward off the 270-foot level, consequently they had remained dry despite the formerly rising water.

Colgate U. Has $1 Million Fire

HAMILTON, N.Y. (AP)—Fire destroyed Colgate University's 90 - year - old Administration Building early Sunday causing damage estimated at approximately $1 million.

A school spokesman said the flames had ruined most of the school's records and that it would be "days, weeks and maybe even years" before the records could be recreated. He said some of the records that were stored in vaults might have been preserved.

The five-story, brick building housed the offices of the president, treasurer, admissions director, alumni corporation, dean of students, registrar, and public relations staff.

Over a thousand persons watched firemen from several nearby communities battle the fire, discovered shortly after 3 a.m. There were no injuries. No one was in the building, which normally closed from noon Saturday through Monday morning.

The cause of the fire was not determined immediately.

Cuba Turns Out Caps, No Bottles

MIAMI, Fla. (AP)—In Cuba today, there are many bottle caps—but few bottles.

Havana radio reports that the industries minister, Ernesto (Che) Guevara, complained loudly about this at a meeting Saturday.

For months, Guevara said, one plant has been busily turning out caps for bottles that no longer were in production.

Things like this happen, he said, because there is much talk and not much work around Communist Cuba these days.

Nhu Daughter Dates Millionaire

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Le Thuy, the beautiful 18-year-old daughter of South Viet Nam's first lady, Mrs. Ngo Dinh Nhu, has acquired a Texas millionaire for a boy friend.

He's slim, respectacled Bruce B. Baxter III of Corpus Christi. Baxter, 24, is the nephew of Dudley Dougherty, oilman and owner of a big spread near the fabled King Ranch in southern Texas.

Baxter, who met Le Thuy when she and her mother were guests at his uncle's Beeville, Tex., ranch last week, flew in to Los Angeles Saturday in a private plane to keep a date with Le Thuy.

Eight Earthquakes Recorded In Calif.

PASADENA, Calif. (AP)—A series of eight earthquakes strong enough to cause property damage was recorded within four hours Sunday but they apparently were centered in a remote desert area.

Only place to report feeling the tremors was Niland, Calif., about 100 miles south of here. Harold Gaston, a cafe owner, said he felt several strong shakes about 7 a.m. but knew of no property damage.

The California Institute of Technology's seismological laboratory said the eight quakes, all above magnitude 4 on the Richter scale, came between 7 a.m. and 11 a.m.

Man And Seven Of His Children Killed In Crash

GALLUP, N.M. (AP) — A man and seven of his children were killed Sunday in a predawn collision of a car and a truck. Five persons, including four other members of the family, were injured.

State patrolman Don Moberly said the car driven by Luz B. Garza, 37, of Nyssa, Ore., hit the truck head-on about 36 miles north of here on U.S. 666. The car was pulling a small trailer.

The truck driver, William D. Wakefield, 48, Aztec, N.M., said he saw the car approaching in the wrong lane as his truck neared a bridge. Wakefield said he locked his brakes.

The truck skidded 149 feet before the collision sheared off the cab. The remainder of the rig rumbled on, plunging into a 25-foot-deep arroyo.

Killed in addition to Garza were Garza's four sons, Viviano, 8; Rojelio, 1; Lupe, 5; Mercedes, 4; and three daughters, Odelia, 13; Irma, 11, and Noelia, 16.

The injured family members are Maria, 40, the mother; two sons, Ramon, 15, and Arthur, 11, and a daughter, Roberta, about 5.

Wakefield also was hospitalized. His condition was listed as fair.

Moberly said the Garzas had been in Idaho helping in the bean and potato harvest and were en route to Alamo, Tex., to visit Mrs. Garza's relatives.

Collision Scatters $10,000 In Coins

HOUSTON (AP)—Houston policemen spent hours Sunday picking up money from the street — $10,000 worth of rare coins.

The money was scattered after a head-on automobile collision involving a rare coin collector, E.J. Cole of Pasadena, Tex.

Russ Pullout Could Affect U.S. Planning

NASA To Go Ahead But Foes Of Lunar Shot Strengthened

WASHINGTON (AP) — Leaders of the U.S. space program said Sunday a reported Soviet pullback on lunar-landing efforts will not and should not affect American moon research projects.

There were indications, however, that the declaration by Premier Khrushchev that the Soviet Union is "not at present" in a race to be first to the moon would strengthen the stand of those opposing heavy space spending.

James E. Webb, administrator of the National Aeronautics and Space Administration, said the U.S. has put together a program calculated to cost $35 billion over 10 years. NASA's position is that this program cannot be turned off and on without serious losses in time and money.

Webb told The Associated Press that Khrushchev's statement was "the most sincere compliment to our space program that has been made."

U.S. Program Defended

Dr. George E. Mueller, director of NASA's manned space flight programs, said the U.S. lunar program is well-conceived and should continue independent of any action that the Russians might take.

Rep. George P. Miller, D-Calif., chairman of the House Science and Astronautics Committee, said the Russian statement should have no effect whatever on the U.S. program.

But Sen. Everett M. Dirksen, Republican leader from Illinois, said the space committees of both chambers should re-examine the whole U.S. program in the light of the Soviet position. Dirksen said he anticipated the Congresssional advocates of reduced space spending would step up their arguments on the basis of Khrushchev's remarks.

Sen. Joseph S. Clark, D-Pa., commented that "if we could be reasonably sure that Khrushchev is not sort of secretively planning to go to the moon, it would seem to me that the remaining reason for a crash program, calling for expenditure of billions of dollars, is now gone. If there is no race. . .we could now take a more leisurely look at the program and perhaps consider using some of this money on such things as education."

Pauling, Ike Question Plan

Dirksen noted that such diverse leaders as Nobel Prize-winning chemist Linus Pauling and former President Dwight D. Eisenhower have questioned the wisdom of moon shot spending on the scale currently projected.

Miller suggested that if Russia in fact has dropped its program to land men on the moon it may be because of a lack of booster power capability.

Webb said the U.S. has put big boosters and world wide tracking systems under-contract, and has invested $7 billion of the proposed $35 billion in powerful booster rockets and $6 billion in large spacecraft, the two-man Gemini and three-man Apollo vehicles.

Webb said that if these programs were to be stopped suddenly, a year from now it would cost so much money to reactivate them that there would be no ultimate saving.

Plot To Kidnap Daughter Of Hirohito Falls Apart

TOKYO (AP) — Police said Sunday a moneylender 15 million yen ($41,666) in debt was the man behind a plot to kidnap Emperor Hirohito's youngest daughter. One of the plotters got cold feet at the last minute and spilled the beans.

Police arrested three men Saturday on charges they planned to kidnap for ransom 24-year-old former Princess Suga, who renounced her title in 1960 to marry Takako Shimazu. Emperor Hirohito no longer is the living god he was before World War II but Japanese were astounded that anyone would plan violence against his family.

"They must be crazy," was a typical man in the street reaction.

Police learned of the plot when Tomihiko Usami, 28, confessed in a telephone call to the newspaper Yomiuri that he and two other men were going to seize Mrs. Shimazu.

Ichiro Kanbayashi, 43, and I amu Ishikawa, 25, were arrested sitting in a car parked near the Shimazu home in a southwestern section of Tokyo. In the car, police said, were three knives, steel wire and bandages the men planned to use as gags. Ransom of 50 million yen ($138,888) was to be asked.

The intended victim said she was "displeased and felt unpleasant. Police told me about the attempt Friday, but I should have noticed the kidnaping attempt before. When my husband and I were driving home a few days ago, I noticed a car following us persistently."

Another warning came from San Juan, Puerto Rico, as the Weather Bureau promoted Helena from a tropical depression to a tropical storm.

Helena was reported almost stationary a short distance west of Guadeloupe or 300 miles southeast of San Juan. Highest winds in the storm center were reported at 50 miles an hour with gales extending outward 120 miles.

At 11 a.m. EST, Ginny was about 170 miles south-southeast of Cape Hatteras. She was reported drifting eastward at less than 5 miles per hour. Ginny was forecast to move on an easterly course at the same speed during the next 12 hours.

Born a week ago off Cape Hatteras, Ginny may go down in history as one of the most erratic and unpredictable of hurricanes. At one time or another she pointed her destructive winds at Florida, Georgia, South Carolina and North Carolina, only to retreat.

Earlier, as rescue workers in a sugar beet field above reamed through 262 feet of earth toward the trapped miners with an oil-well rig, one of the miners yelled into a lowered microphone:

"You've got to hurry. In eight hours we'll be drowned."

The rescue workers hope to lower an escape capsule down the two-foot hole now being drilled to haul up the trapped miners.

When the plea to hurry came from the sludge-filled air pocket, rescuers instructed the trapped men to make a mark at the level of the water on the wall of their chamber.

Two hours later, when the microphone was lowered again through a 10-inch supply hole, one of the men shouted "The water is falling!"

He said the sludgy, debris-filled water was two inches below the scratch on the rocky slope.

There were 129 miners underground when tons of muddy water roared into the mine's honeycomb of tunnels last Thursday.

Seven miners were rescued earlier, but hope for saving 39 trapped on the lowest level, 330 feet underground, has been abandoned. Seventy - nine other miners managed to scramble to safety soon after the mudslide.

The first noise from below was four knocking sounds, leading rescue crews to believe that all four men had been located.

But the three men reached by the microphone said they had no idea of the whereabouts of the fourth, and unaccounted for, miner.

The trapped trio described their chamber as nine feet tall, nine feet wide, and 300 feet long. They said it sloped gently upward off the 270-foot level, consequently they had remained dry despite the formerly rising water.

Colgate U. Has $1 Million Fire

HAMILTON, N.Y. (AP)—Fire destroyed Colgate University's 90 - year - old Administration Building early Sunday causing damage estimated at approximately $1 million.

A school spokesman said the flames had ruined most of the school's records and that it would be "days, weeks and maybe even years" before the records could be recreated. He said some of the records that were stored in vaults might have been preserved.

The five-story, brick building housed the offices of the president, treasurer, admissions director, alumni corporation, dean of students, registrar, and public relations staff.

Over a thousand persons watched firemen from several nearby communities battle the fire, discovered shortly after 3 a.m. There were no injuries. No one was in the building, which normally closed from noon Saturday through Monday morning.

The cause of the fire was not determined immediately.

Cuba Turns Out Caps, No Bottles

MIAMI, Fla. (AP)—In Cuba today, there are many bottle caps—but few bottles.

Havana radio reports that the industries minister, Ernesto (Che) Guevara, complained loudly about this at a meeting Saturday.

For months, Guevara said, one plant has been busily turning out caps for bottles that no longer were in production.

Things like this happen, he said, because there is much talk and not much work around Communist Cuba these days.

Nhu Daughter Dates Millionaire

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Le Thuy, the beautiful 18-year-old daughter of South Viet Nam's first lady, Mrs. Ngo Dinh Nhu, has acquired a Texas millionaire for a boy friend.

He's slim, respectacled Bruce B. Baxter III of Corpus Christi. Baxter, 24, is the nephew of Dudley Dougherty, oilman and owner of a big spread near the fabled King Ranch in southern Texas.

Baxter, who met Le Thuy when she and her mother were guests at his uncle's Beeville, Tex., ranch last week, flew in to Los Angeles Saturday in a private plane to keep a date with Le Thuy.

Eight Earthquakes Recorded In Calif.

PASADENA, Calif. (AP)—A series of eight earthquakes strong enough to cause property damage was recorded within four hours Sunday but they apparently were centered in a remote desert area.

Only place to report feeling the tremors was Niland, Calif., about 100 miles south of here. Harold Gaston, a cafe owner, said he felt several strong shakes about 7 a.m. but knew of no property damage.

The California Institute of Technology's seismological laboratory said the eight quakes, all above magnitude 4 on the Richter scale, came between 7 a.m. and 11 a.m.

Man And Seven Of His Children Killed In Crash

GALLUP, N.M. (AP) — A man and seven of his children were killed Sunday in a predawn collision of a car and a truck. Five persons, including four other members of the family, were injured.

State patrolman Don Moberly said the car driven by Luz B. Garza, 37, of Nyssa, Ore., hit the truck head-on about 36 miles north of here on U.S. 666. The car was pulling a small trailer.

The truck driver, William D. Wakefield, 48, Aztec, N.M., said he saw the car approaching in the wrong lane as his truck neared a bridge. Wakefield said he locked his brakes.

The truck skidded 149 feet before the collision sheared off the cab. The remainder of the rig rumbled on, plunging into a 25-foot-deep arroyo.

Killed in addition to Garza were Garza's four sons, Viviano, 8; Rojelio, 1; Lupe, 5; Mercedes, 4; and three daughters, Odelia, 13; Irma, 11, and Noelia, 16.

The injured family members are Maria, 40, the mother; two sons, Ramon, 15, and Arthur, 11, and a daughter, Roberta, about 5.

Wakefield also was hospitalized. His condition was listed as fair.

Moberly said the Garzas had been in Idaho helping in the bean and potato harvest and were en route to Alamo, Tex., to visit Mrs. Garza's relatives.

Collision Scatters $10,000 In Coins

HOUSTON (AP)—Houston policemen spent hours Sunday picking up money from the street — $10,000 worth of rare coins.

The money was scattered after a head-on automobile collision involving a rare coin collector, E.J. Cole of Pasadena, Tex.

Plot To Kidnap Daughter Of Hirohito Falls Apart

TOKYO (AP) — Police said Sunday a moneylender 15 million yen ($41,666) in debt was the man behind a plot to kidnap Emperor Hirohito's youngest daughter. One of the plotters got cold feet at the last minute and spilled the bea

Police arrested three men Saturday on charges they planned to kidnap for ransom 24-year-old former Princess Suga, who renounced her title in 1960 to marry Takako Shimazu. Emperor Hirohito no longer is the living god he was before World War II but Japanese were astounded that anyone would plot violence against his family.

"They must be crazy," was a typical man in the street reaction.

Police learned of the plot when Tomihiko Usami, 28, confessed in a telephone call to the newspaper Yomiuri that he and two other men were going to seize Mrs. Shimazu.

Ichiro Kanbayashi, 43, and I amu Ishikawa, 25, were arrested sitting in a car parked near the Shimazu home in a southwestern section of Tokyo. In the car, police said, were three knives, steel wire and bandages the men planned to use as gags. Ransom of 50 million yen ($138,888) was to be asked.

The intended victim said she was "displeased and felt unpleasant. Police told me about the attempt Friday, but I should have noticed the kidnaping attempt before. When my husband and I were driving home a few days ago, I noticed a car following us persistently."

Russ Pullout Could Affect U.S. Planning

NASA To Go Ahead But Foes Of Lunar Shot Strengthened

WASHINGTON (AP) — Leaders of the U.S. space program said Sunday a reported Soviet pullback on lunar-landing efforts will not and should not affect American moon research projects.

There were indications, however, that the declaration by Premier Khrushchev that the Soviet Union is "not at present" in a race to be first to the moon would strengthen the stand of those opposing heavy space spending.

James E. Webb, administrator of the National Aeronautics and Space Administration, said the U.S. has put together a program calculated to cost $35 billion over 10 years. NASA's position is that this program cannot be turned off and on without serious losses in time and money.

Webb told The Associated Press that Khrushchev's statement was "the most sincere compliment to our space program that has been made."

U.S. Program Defended

Dr. George E. Mueller, director of NASA's manned space flight programs, said the U.S. lunar program is well-conceived and should continue independent of any action that the Russians might take.

Rep. George P. Miller, D-Calif., chairman of the House Science and Astronautics Committee, said the Russian statement should have no effect whatever on the U.S. program.

But Sen. Everett M. Dirksen, Republican leader from Illinois, said the space committees of both chambers should re-examine the whole U.S. program in the light of the Soviet position. Dirksen said he anticipated the Congresssional advocates of reduced space spending would step up their arguments on the basis of Khrushchev's remarks.

Sen. Joseph S. Clark, D-Pa., commented that "if we could be reasonably sure that Khrushchev is not sort of secretively planning to go to the moon, it would seem to me that the remaining reason for a crash program, calling for expenditure of billions of dollars, is now gone. If there is no race. . .we could now take a more leisurely look at the program and perhaps consider using some of this money on such things as education."

Pauling, Ike Question Plan

Dirksen noted that such diverse leaders as Nobel Prize-winning chemist Linus Pauling and former President Dwight D. Eisenhower have questioned the wisdom of moon shot spending on the scale currently projected.

Miller suggested that if Russia in fact has dropped its program to land men on the moon it may be because of a lack of booster power capability.

Webb said the U.S. has put big boosters and world wide tracking systems under-contract, and has invested $7 billion of the proposed $35 billion in powerful booster rockets and $6 billion in large spacecraft, the two-man Gemini and three-man Apollo vehicles.

Webb said that if these programs were to be stopped suddenly, a year from now it would cost so much money to reactivate them that there would be no ultimate saving.

Experts Say Hurricane Pattern Not Predictable

MIAMI, Fla. (AP)—Why do more hurricanes form in one year than in another? Why do some like to go to Florida, while others prefer Texas or New England? Why couldn't Flora and Ginny make up their minds?

Is there a predictable hurricane pattern?

The Seminole Indian knows. He can tell by the height of the saw grass and the color of the seaweed.

The bartender knows. "A friend of mine—he's got the real inside dope—just told me. They seeded Flora and Ginny and made 'em do all that crazy bouncing around."

The cab driver knows. "It's them atom bombs."

The Weather Bureau doesn't know.

The top hurricane forecaster himself, Gordon Dunn of Miami, says there is no agreement among the experts on patterns.

In fairness to the meteorologist, those fantastic Seminole forecasts you hear about somehow never come to light until after a hurricane season is over.

Flora and Ginny were not seeded. "I can guarantee that," says Dunn.

And atom bombs would have had no effect on Flora and Ginny, the 1963 gadabouts, if any had been exploded.

So far as hurricane frequencies are concerned, Dunn says, "most meteorologists don't believe there are any regular cycles that could be used statistically to prove anything."

As for hurricane tracks, the forecasters know why one goes in a certain direction at the time it is going there. But that doesn't mean the next one is going the same way. Each of the breezy ladies has a mind of her own.

Certain patterns may persist for a few months, but never longer. No pattern ever lasts from one season into the next. Hurricanes may form anywhere and go anywhere.

Dunn figures that a hurricane's direction is controlled about 85 per cent by the steering current in which it is embedded. It floats like a cork in a river of air.

The earth's revolution affects it somewhat, giving it a slight nudge to northward. It is strongly influenced by areas of high and low pressure.

Seven Persons Meet Violent Deaths In Md.

By The Associated Press

Homicide ran rampant in Maryland over the weekend, with seven persons shot, stabbed strangled or drowned.

In Baltimore, a mother and her two small sons were found slain in their home Sunday by the woman's father.

Police said the body of Mrs. Doris C. Wilkins, 32, was found stuffed in a cupboard of the house. She apparently had been strangled. Her two sons—Kevin, 8 and Kerwin, 2—were found dead in a filled bathtub. They presumably had been drowned, police said.

Late Saturday night, a man was shot to death and his wife seriously injured in what police termed an attempted murder and suicide.

The shootings occurred in a tavern in Aberdeen. Police said William McComas of Aberdeen walked into the tavern and shot his wife, then turned a .45 caliber revolver on himself. The wife is in serious condition at Harford Memorial Hospital.

And a 20-year-old Harford County man was fatally stabbed early Sunday at a Havre de Grace tavern.

Police said the victim was Daniel Keyes of Havre de Grace. He was stabbed in a fight that broke out at the Sunset Inn shortly after midnight. Keyes had been wounded two weeks ago in a shooting in Bel Air.

Police were questioning a suspect.

In Carroll County, police were holding a 17-year-old patient at Springfield State Hospital in the strangulation death of another inmate.

The victim, whose body was discovered Saturday near the picnic-dump area of the hospital, was identified as Sterling Turfle, 58. He had been a patient at the hospital since 1935.

In an incident Saturday, Joseph McCalmont of Parkton has been charged with homicide in the fatal shooting of a 16-year-old boy who had been hunting squirrels on McCalmont's property.

The farmer told police he had ordered the victim, Wesley Mason, and five hunting companions off his property. He said he returned to his house for a deer rifle, which discharged as he climbed a fence and started to chase the boys off his property.

Male Beautician Student Vanishes

CLIFTON, England (AP) — An American male has disappeared from a beautician's course he was taking with 21 girls, officials at the Henlow Grange Beauty Farm reported Sunday.

He is Russell Winterbottom, 37, from Santa Barbara, Calif.

"Mr. Winterbottom is a very shy man," said an official.

Winterbottom joined the course five weeks ago and paid 150 guineas ($441) for a year's tuition. He disappeared Oct. 17 after setting off for a run in a track suit.

Officials at the farm said they became worried and notified police, who are now searching for the American—the only man on the course—with tracker dogs. Winterbottom left all his possessions, including an automobile, his suits and shirts, his passport, a check book and some loose change.

"We are completely baffled," said an official.

Attorney Goes On Trial Today In Wife's Death

MINNEAPOLIS (AP)—A boyishlooking attorney-a one-time choir singer and elder of his church- goes on trial Monday on a charge of instigating the slaying of his heavily insured wife.

Tilmer Eugene Thompson, 35, of St. Paul, and two other men were indicted on first-degree murder charges in the death of Carol Thompson, 34, the mother of four.

Thompson is the first to come to trial. Dick W. C. Anderson, 36, who police say was the actual killer, and former boxer Norman C. Mastrian, 40, an alleged middleman, await trial in St. Paul.

Thompson, too, was indicted in St. Paul but won a change of venue to Minneapolis because of alleged prejudicial publicity in his home city.

The defendent is slightly built and about 5 feet 6. He has a round face, thin lips and crewcut blond hair. He wears glasses, conservative business suits and, frequently, bow ties.

As an attorney he was successful but not a sensation. At the time of his arrest he was chairman of the Minnesota Bar Association's Committee on Criminal Law.

Thompson and his wife attended a St. Paul Presbyterian Church, and the husband was an elder and trustee. They and their children lived in a fashionable home in one of the best residential areas of St. Paul.

The attractive young matron was beaten and stabbed in her house March 6 after Thompson had gone to his office and the children had departed for school.

Mrs. Thompson stumbled to a neighbor's home, gasped, "A man did it," then lost consciousness. She died in a hospital four hours later.

Three weeks later Thompson issued a statement to news media, confirming reports that he was the beneficiary of $1,061,000 in insurance on his wife. The attorney explained he wanted to correct the "fanciful, farfetched stories that some people have been alluding to."

Mastrian was arrested in his suburban home April 19, and Anderson was picked up a few hours later at a Phoenix, Ariz., motel. The two were indicted May 8 by a grand jury which had heard Thompson as a witness.

Thompson was arrested at his late home June 21, just 90 minutes after Anderson had made a statement in which he reportedly confessed he was the killer.

Traffic Toll Reaches 471

By The Associated Press

A pedestrian and a Pennsylvania sailor died in separate traffic accidents and a woman was killed when she was run over by a car in a potato field in Maryland this weekend.

The traffic deaths brought the state's highway death toll to 471, three more than at this time last year.

State police said Roy A Calvert, 56, of Charlestown, Md., was struck by a car as he walked along U.S. 40 east of Perryville in Cecil County late Saturday night.

Charles Yingling, 27, of Clymer, Pa., a sailor at the Patuxent Naval Air Station, was killed and three others were slightly injured when the car in which they were riding went off Maryland 5, four miles south of Leonardtown, and rolled over several times, State Police said.

Police also reported that Mary Alston, 48, of Waldorf was run over by her own car while she dug potatoes in a field near the town. She had parked the car a few feet away from where she was working and the car rolled forward, police said.

Barry May Pass Up Wisconsin Primary

WASHINGTON (AP) — Sen. Barry Goldwater, R-Ariz., said Sunday that if he goes after the 1964 GOP presidential nomination he probably will pass up the Wisconsin primary.

Goldwater travels Tuesday to look over the political situation in New Hampshire, where his name is certain to be on that state's March 10 perference ballot unless he withdraws it.

Goldwater said in an interview he is in agreement with an effort by Wisconsin Republicans to get behind Rep. John W. Byrnes, R-Wis., as a favorite son in their state's April 7 primary.

Traffic Toll Reaches 471

By The Associated Press

A pedestrian and a Pennsylvania sailor died in separate traffic accidents and a woman was killed when she was run over by a car in a potato field in Maryland this weekend.

The traffic deaths brought the state's highway death toll to 471, three more than at this time last year.

State police said Roy A Calvert, 56, of Charlestown, Md., was struck by a car as he walked along U.S. 40 east of Perryville in Cecil County late Saturday night.

Charles Yingling, 27, of Clymer, Pa., a sailor at the Patuxent Naval Air Station, was killed and three others were slightly injured when the car in which they were riding went off Maryland 5, four miles south of Leonardtown, and rolled over several times, State Police said.

Police also reported that Mary Alston, 48, of Waldorf was run over by her own car while she dug potatoes in a field near the town. She had parked the car a few feet away from where she was working and the car rolled forward, police said.

Barry May Pass Up Wisconsin Primary

WASHINGTON (AP) — Sen. Barry Goldwater, R-Ariz., said Sunday that if he goes after the 1964 GOP presidential nomination he probably will pass up the Wisconsin primary.

Goldwater travels Tuesday to look over the political situation in New Hampshire, where his name is certain to be on that state's March 10 perference ballot unless he withdraws it.

Goldwater said in an interview he is in agreement with an effort by Wisconsin Republicans to get behind Rep. John W. Byrnes, R-Wis., as a favorite son in their state's April 7 primary.

Professional beauty experts and others in the know all agree that every woman must have a lovely, natural-looking mouth!

Secrets Of Charm
by John Robert Powers

Lip Tricks For You

The modern woman must have a natural looking mouth. Anything so artificial as the cupid's bow of the '20s or the bee sting of the '40s is so outmoded in style that it will make you look old in appearance.

If you have been clinging to either, sit down in front of your mirror tonight. Remove all traces of your lipstick and then start getting acquainted with the natural shape of your mouth. It's high time that you give it the individual style that it merits.

There are only two exceptions to this rule: the woman whose lips are seriously faulty in shape or whose mouth is completely out of proportion to the rest of her face.

To have a beautiful, attractive mouth, all any woman needs is a lipstick brush, a steady hand, patience and the following guidance.

Apply your lipstick along your natural lip lines, unless . . .

Exception No. 1: Those with a crooked upper lip (one side higher than the other). Correction: Fill in the deep curve between the bows with a flat, horizontal stroke of your brush. With the brush tip, round off the points of the bow. Then, come down each side in a gentle, outward curve until you are past the half-way mark, where you must taper off quickly to the corners.

Exception No. 2: Those with a pointed bow. Correction: Fill in the deep curve between the bows with a flat, horizontal stroke of your brush. With the brush tip, round off the points of the bow. Then, come down each side in a gentle, outward curve until you are past the half-way mark, where you must taper off quickly to the corners.

Exception No. 3: The full lower lip. Correction: Apply your color just inside the lower lip and widen the upper to balance.

Exception No. 4: Full upper lip. Correction: Reverse the above.

Exception No. 5: Thin or straight lips. Correction: Increase the fullness and curve of both lips.

Now, for relation of your mouth to the size of your face: Generally, it should extend in length from a line just under the pupils of your eyes. If it falls short, with only the slightest encouragement, your brush will stretch it a quarter inch or so. The same instrument will also shorten it to a point about a quarter inch inside the corners. All you need to do is teach it how — and a woman's mouth is so important to her beauty that there should not be a moment's delay!

Defendants Drop Appeals

Five appeal cases scheduled for trial Friday in Allegany County Circuit Court were dropped by the defendants, who paid the fines and costs imposed in Trial Magistrates Court and also additional Circuit Court costs, according to Donald W. Mason, deputy state's attorney.

Lester Eugene McCullough dropped his appeal from a conviction before Magistrate F. Allan Weatherholt on a charge of reckless driving. He was fined $20 by the magistrate. McCullough was arrested by City Officer Raymond Valentine.

Anthony Sylvester LaValle, Washington, dropped an appeal from a conviction by Magistrate Leslie J. Clark for reckless driving and failing to locate and notify the owner of property damage in an accident. He was fined $75 and costs by the magistrate after his arrest by City Officer Frank Bohn on Frederick Street.

Francis Lee Ireland, formerly of Frostburg, dropped an appeal from his conviction by Magistrate Frank Kelly on a charge of failing to have a Maryland registration card. He had been fined $25 and costs. He was arrested by Officer John Starkey of Frostburg.

Delbert Eugene McKenzie, of Frostburg, dropped an appeal from a conviction by Magistrate Kelly for reckless driving. He had been fined $15 and costs after his arrest by State Police Tfc. Joseph Stakem.

William Thomas Harden, RD 2, Frostburg, dropped his appeal from a conviction by Magistrate Edward Flanigan on a charge of failing to drive on the right-center of a highway. He was fined $21 and costs after his arrest by State Police Officer P. J. Fiorita.

ANSWERS TO BRIDGE QUIZ

Q. 1—As South you hold, with 70 part score:

♠K J 6 ♡A K Q ◇A J 9 3 ♣J 10 3

What is your opening bid?

A.—One no trump. True, this hand exceeds the bounds of a no trump opening by a full point plus a 10. However, the conditions of score may create an awkward rebid problem if you open with one diamond and partner responds in a major suit. The slight underbid is very unlikely to result in the loss of a slam and will, in fact, serve to facilitate further bidding if any develops.

◆

Q. 2—As South you hold:

♠Q 9 8 4 3 ♡8 7 5 4 2 ◇8 5 ♣4

The bidding has proceeded:

North	East	South
1 ♠	Double	?

What do you bid?

A.—Our choice is for a barricade bid of three spades. This may keep the opponents out of a possible game in a minor suit or goad them into a game in hearts, against which you have some defense.

◆

Q. 3—As dealer you hold:

♠A K Q 4 ♡K J ◇A K J ♣A 10 6 4

What is your opening bid?

A.—While this hand measures up to the specifications of a three no trump opening and, tho such an answer must be accepted as entirely correct, this department has a very slight preference in favor of an opening two spade bid.

Such a bid provides an additional chance for a safe landing place if partner should have some weak hand containing four spades—some hand which would provide no good play for nine tricks at no trump but would nevertheless provide the distributional values to produce 10 tricks at spades. Furthermore, the two spade opening does not preclude an eventual no trump contract.

◆

Q. 4—As South you hold:

♠A 9 5 2 ♡K 7 4 ◇A K ♣A Q J 6

The bidding has proceeded:

South	West	North	East
1 ♣	Pass	1 ♠	Pass

What do you bid now?

A.—One of the top drawer rebids is, of course, clearly indicated. It is a close call between a jump raise to four spades and a jump shift of three diamonds. Either may be accepted as correct. Our own taste runs to the latter by a narrow margin. It will have the merit of ferreting out a possible slam on some few holdings. Take no credit whatever if your answer was three spades. Such a rebid by opener is not forcing.

◆

Q. 5—Partner opens with one spade and you hold:

♠10 8 7 5 4 ♡6 ◇Q 7 ♣K Q 10 7 5

What is your response?

A.—This is the type of hand for a preemptive raise. You have great playing strength, but no defense. Bid four spades.

◆

Q. 6—As South you hold:

♠A K J ♡A 8 7 5 2 ◇A ♣Q 8 7 4

The bidding has proceeded:

South	West	North	East
1 ♡	Pass	1 ♠	Pass

What do you bid now?

A.—A vigorous rebid is in order, but not one that absolutely insists upon game, which may not be available if partner has a shaded response. Our preference is for a raise to three spades. Normally we insist upon four trumps for such a call but, since no other suitable bid is available, we must ask partner to get along with only three trumps this time.

◆

Q. 7—Partner opens with one club and you hold:

♠K 6 4 2 ♡K 7 5 3 ◇Q 7 4 3 ♣5

What is your response?

A.—One diamond. Tho your major suit holdings are stronger a diamond response is more strategic. It affords partner the opportunity of rebidding at the level of one and, if he happens to have four hearts or four spades, you will hear about it at once.

◆

Q. 8—As South you hold:

♠A J 6 3 ♡7 3 ◇A 6 2 ♣A K 6 5

The bidding has proceeded:

South	West	North	East
1 ♣	3 ♠	Pass	Pass

What do you bid now?

A.—While there is good reason to believe that you can beat three spades, a double is not recommended. There is too much danger that partner will choose not to leave it in and, if he responds in hearts, you will find yourself, no doubt, in a shaky contract. We would prefer to play for a reasonably sure profit by passing.

Ann Landers . . .
Answers Your Problems

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I was fascinated by the letter from the woman who admitted that for 11 years she had been the mistress of a married man. I'm sure her lover is my husband.

I have adored this man with all my heart these past 11 years—and you can add another 11 years for good measure, because there were two other women before this one came along.

I'm in excellent health, contrary to what she believes, but it's far more convenient to tell one's mistress that the wife is mentally ill, or that she suffers from headaches, backaches, exhaustion and so forth. This provides him with an excellent excuse for seeking outside company and it makes the mistress believe she is filling a vital need in his life.

I've dedicated myself to being a good mother, an active and useful member of the community, and I'm determined to hold my head up. Life would be infinitely easier, however, if well-meaning "friends" didn't feel it their moral obligation to tell me what is going on.

I hope to face the future with courage and to wait patiently until my man comes home for good. I will welcome him back and yes — even push his wheel chair—because I love him and I always will. —GRISELDA

DEAR ANN LANDERS: Please tell that mistress of 11 years that her letter scored a bull's eye. It's my husband she has all right, and she can have him.

I've been begging the big clown to clear out for the last six years. I've told him I'm sick and tired of covering up for him with the kids. I've even packed his clothes and ordered him to leave. But do you know what he says? "Honey, that woman can't shine your shoes. Please stick with me until I get this foolishness out of my system."

So I'm sticking—with the clear understanding that the first time he embarrasses me or his children by appearing on a public sidewalk with that dame I'll knock his block off.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: Please wire me collect either yes or no. Did that letter from the 11-year mistress come from Hamilton, Ontario? My husband has been acting funny since 1952 and it all figures. Thanks, Mom.—T.C.L.

DEAR T.C.L.: Sorry I will not tell you where the letter came from, but I will tell you that it did not come from Hamilton. And I'm not your mother.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I'm so furious I could chew nails. Thursday's mail brought a Chicago Sun-Times clipping of your column about the woman who has been a mistress for 11 years. Friday morning I received a clipping of the same column—this one from the Detroit Free Press. Saturday I got another clipping—this one from Grand Rapids, Michigan.

My husband and I have been married for 11 years and I can't figure out whether someone thinks we are living together without the benefit of clergy—or whether I'm being told in a not-so-subtle way that my husband has a mistress. What does this sound like to you? —BUNDLE OF NERVES

DEAR BUNDLE: It sounds like you know a needle-artist with an air-travel card. Forget it.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: You'll never print this letter because it doesn't support your stupid, outdated Puritanical advice. As a mistress of seven years standing I would like to say I hope the man doesn't marry her because it will spoil everything.

A mistress doesn't have to wash the guy's socks or listen to him snore. Neither does she have to put up with his miserable relatives or his boring boss. I get the man at his best. His wife gets him at his worst. I've been a wife twice and I'll never be one again. This is the life!—GOT IT MADE

Ann Landers will be glad to help you with your problems. Send them to her in care of this newspaper enclosing a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

A.—One of the top drawer rebids is, of course, clearly indicated. It is a close call between a jump raise to four spades and a jump shift of three diamonds. Either may be accepted as correct. Our own taste runs to the latter by a narrow margin. It will have the merit of ferreting out a possible slam on some few holdings. Take no credit whatever if your answer was three spades. Such a rebid by opener is not forcing.

◆

Q. 5—Partner opens with one spade and you hold:

♠10 8 7 5 4 ♡6 ◇Q 7 ♣K Q 10 7 5

What is your response?

A.—This is the type of hand for a preëmptive raise. You have great playing strength, but no defense. Bid four spades.

◆

Q. 6—As South you hold:

♠A K J ♡A 8 7 5 2 ◇A ♣Q 8 7 4

The bidding has proceeded:

South	West	North	East
1♡	Pass	1♠	Pass

What do you bid now?

A.—A vigorous rebid is in order, but not one that absolutely insists upon game, which may not be available if partner has a shaded response. Our preference is for a raise to three spades. Normally we insist upon four trumps for such a call but, since no other suitable bid is available, we must ask partner to get along with only three trumps this time.

◆

Q. 7—Partner opens with one club and you hold:

♠K 6 4 2 ♡K 7 5 3 ◇Q 7 4 3 ♣5

What is your response?

A.—One diamond. Tho your major suit holdings are stronger a diamond response is more strategic. It affords partner the opportunity of rebidding at the level of one and, if he happens to have four hearts or four spades, you will hear about it at once.

◆

Q. 8—As South you hold:

♠A J 6 3 ♡7 3 ◇A 6 2 ♣A K 6 5

The bidding has proceeded:

South	West	North	East
1♣	3♠	Pass	Pass

What do you bid now?

A.—While there is good reason to believe that you can beat three spades, a double is not recommended. There is too much danger that partner will choose not to leave it in and, if he responds in hearts, you will find yourself, no doubt, in a shaky contract. We would prefer to play for a reasonably sure profit by passing.

Ann Landers . . .

Answers Your Problems

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I was fascinated by the letter from the woman who admitted that for 11 years she had been the mistress of a married man. I'm sure her lover is my husband.

I have adored this man with all my heart these past 11 years—and you can add another 11 years for good measure, because there were two other women before this one came along.

I'm in excellent health, contrary to what she believes, but it's far more convenient to tell one's mistress that the wife is mentally ill, or that she suffers from headaches, backaches, exhaustion and so forth. This provides him with an excellent excuse for seeking outside company and it makes the mistress believe she is filling a vital need in his life.

I've dedicated myself to being a good mother, an active and useful member of the community, and I'm determined to hold my head up. Life would be infinitely easier, however, if well-meaning "friends" didn't feel it their moral obligation to tell me what is going on.

I hope to face the future with courage and to wait patiently until my man comes home for good. I will welcome him back and yes — even push his wheel chair—because I love him and I always will. —GRISELDA

DEAR ANN LANDERS: Please tell that mistress of 11 years that her letter scored a bull's eye. It's my husband she has all right, and she can have him.

I've been begging the big clown to clear out for the last six years. I've told him I'm sick and tired of covering up for him with the kids. I've even packed his clothes and ordered him to leave. But do you know what he says? "Honey, that woman can't shine your shoes. Please stick with me until I get this foolishness out of my system."

So I'm sticking—with the clear understanding that the first time he embarrasses me or his children by appearing on a public sidewalk with that dame I'll knock his block off.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: Please wire me collect either yes or no. Did that letter from the 11-year mistress come from Hamilton, Ontario? My husband has been acting funny since 1952 and it all figures. Thanks, Mom.—T.C.L.

DEAR T.C.L.: Sorry I will not tell you where the letter came from, but I will tell you that it did not come from Hamilton. And I'm not your mother.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I'm so furious I could chew nails. Thursday's mail brought a Chicago Sun-Times clipping of your column about the woman who has been a mistress for 11 years. Friday morning I received a clipping of the same column—this one from the Detroit Free Press. Saturday I got another clipping—this one from Grand Rapids, Michigan.

My husband and I have been married for 11 years and I can't figure out whether someone thinks we are living together without the benefit of clergy—or whether I'm being told in a not-so-subtle way that my husband has a mistress. What does this sound like to you? —BUNDLE OF NERVES

DEAR BUNDLE: It sounds like you know a needle-artist with an air-travel card. Forget it.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: You'll never print this letter because it doesn't support your stupid, outdated Puritanical advice. As a mistress of seven years standing I would like to say I hope the man doesn't marry her because it will spoil everything.

A mistress doesn't have to wash the guy's socks or listen to him snore. Neither does she have to put up with his miserable relatives or his boring boss. I get the man at his best. His wife gets him at his worst. I've been a wife twice and I'll never be one again. This is the life!—GOT IT MADE

Ann Landers will be glad to help you with your problems. Send them to her in care of this newspaper enclosing a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

Light Showers Are 'Tease' In W. Va.

CHARLESTON, W.Va. (UPI) — Light showers in scattered parts of the state Sunday teased drought - stricken West Virginians for the first time in 45 days.

Asst. State Forester B. J. Warder said the showers made little if any change in the "serious" forest fire situation. Warder reported a total of 140 fires in the state Sunday, including five new blazes in Harrison, Clay, Fayette, Kanawha and Mingo counties.

Among points reporting cloudy skies and some showers were Morgantown, Huntingdon, Elkins and Charleston.

The southern part of the state was hardest hit with forest fires, 67 old ones and 2 new ones. The northwestern portion reported 47 old blazes and 2 new ones.

Warder said firefighters were hampered in the Beckley area by haze which restricted visibility and made it difficult for fire towers to spot new fires.

The eastern part of the state reported no new fires and only one old one was burning.

Steel Prices At Issue Again

The administration may be heading for a new showdown on what has become a touchy subject in the White House — steel prices. Subpoenaing of major producers by a U. S. grand jury follows President Kennedy's recent word that the administration was "watching the rises very carefully."

Latest government action comes just when the scars from the administration's clash with the industry in early 1962 seemed to have healed. At that time U. S. Steel was forced to rescind an across-the-board increase of $6 a ton. The industry held the price line until last April when it posted increases on selected products.

The administration not only did not object to these increases, but guardedly praised the industry for exercising restraint. Later steel companies raised prices on other products. These piecemeal actions resulted in slight increases on about 75 per cent of steel products.

The cost squeeze is a persuasive fact for the steel industry, as it is in practically every other business. In any event, it is not for the government to embark on a course of selective price control (if that is the intent of the grand jury inquiry), but for the marketplace to decide whether current steel prices are too high.

This is the true function of free enterprise.

These Days

Hunger For Clear Choices

When Richard Austen — or Rab — Butler was denied the Prime Minister's post in Britain for the second time in seven years by the Conservative Party "establishment," it seemed to many to constitute a rank injustice. For it was Mr. Butler, in company with Iain Macleod, who had done most of the hard dog work that had gone into the post-World War II revitalization of British conservatism. It must have caused Mr. Butler excruciating pain to see the Prime Minister's portfolio go to the relatively unknown Lord Home.

The by-passing of Butler, however, seems to be quite in line with world trends in political affairs, for everywhere there seems to be a hunger for what might be called polarized political representation. In his own way Rab Butler has been an "opening to the Left" man in British conservative circles, which is to say that his political outlines are smudged. He has been against the Laborites and the socialists, yes. But when Butler commenced his work some fifteen years ago of refurbishing the Tory "image," it seemed politically necessary to accept most of the Laborite Welfare State measures.

Butler, an intellectual, labored hard and long to give Welfarism a conservative twist. But in doing this he incurred the slur that he was a "me too" character. True enough, he talked of preserving a society in which incentives would bulk larger than "fair share" restrictions. But the Butler formulas usually ended in a "yes-but" area — "yes, we should encourage private industry, but we must retain the social services to which we have become accustomed."

The Rab Butler "image," then, is of a man of the middle, a centrist. But the centrists everywhere are having difficulty these days. They lose votes in Italy when they bid for socialist support; they get nowhere in de Gaulle's France. It was not so long ago that a Wendell Willkie, a Thomas Dewey, or a non-political General Eisenhower, could marshal the big battalions behind them in fighting for the supreme prize of the American Presidency. These were modern "Republicans," very like the "progressive Conservatives" who constituted the Rab Butler-Iain Macleod wing of the British Tory Party. But in 1963 "modern Republicanism" is like a boat without oars. Goldwater, a man of clear outlines, is drawing more and more young Republicans to his standard while Nelson Rockefeller, an American version of Rab Butler, is having his difficulties.

No doubt there is some flummery and insincerity in the turn toward conservative polarization on the part of both British Tories and American Republicans. But there is sound instinct, too. The world is getting tired of mealy-mouthedness. People in the democracies expect their leaders to compromise once they are in office, but they are beginning to ask that compromises be made with some regard to general mandates and general philosophical goals.

The British Conservative who is willing to compromise toward socialism as a limit is giving way to the Conservative who wants the compromise to go at least a short distance the other way. Lord Home, a man of clear speech, has suddenly become preferable to Rab Butler, the man of blurred edges. And Barry Goldwater, instead of being criticized as a "Neanderthal" for preferring freedom to security, is evoking a curious respect even among those who disagree with some of the things he says.

This is not to say that either the British Tories or the American Republicans, if they are to be the rulers in their respective countries throughout the late Nineteen Sixties, will abolish the progressive income tax, get rid of all government controls, and abandon the UN to the Afro-Asian bloc. But it does mean that new "working directions" will be instituted.

More and more attempts will be made to mitigate the steepness of progressive taxation in the middle and upper brackets in order to encourage the sort of investment that multiplies into many jobs. As Britain's Foreign Minister, Lord Home took the unprecedented step a few weeks ago of using the UN as a real sounding board for British interests. A conservative Republican in the White House would almost certainly insist on a similar UN policy for America.

Suddenly it is precision in political definition that people are coming to want. The rise of the Lord Homes and the Barry Goldwaters in Anglo-American politics is nothing strange. It merely acknowledges a trend.

Soviet-U. S. Wheat Negotiations Bring Together Amazing Contrasts

By Drew Pearson

WASHINGTON — Some of the most amazing contrasts in business personalities have been sitting across the table from each other negotiating the sale of American wheat to Soviet Russia.

On one side of the table are members of the Soviet Ministry of Bread who have spent their lives in the Communist Party. On the other side are some of the big business leaders of capitalism, most of them contributors to the Republican Party, most of them anti-Kennedy, most of them investigated by Congress for profiting on US surplus grain. One was prosecuted for mixing Canadian wheat unfit for human consumption with good American wheat and palming it off on unsuspecting buyers in Europe.

Unlike the Canadian - Soviet wheat deal, which was arranged government to government, the Kennedy Administration has stepped aside and let the big grain dealers of the northwest handle the Soviet sale and fix the prices.

All the Kennedy Administration did was to OK the sale under certain ground rules. The rest is up to hard-boiled Communist negotiators on one side and hard-boiled capitalist negotiators on the other. If they get together there should be definite hope for co-existence.

Chief Soviet negotiator is Leonid Matveyev, heard of Eksporthleb, which means "bread export."

On the other side is Continental Grain, which rolled up a total of $112,230,454 income from handling foreign aid shipments for the Eisenhower Administration in 1958 and was investigated by the House Government Operations Committee under Rep. L. H. Fountain, D-N.C. The Garnac Grain Co., another applicant for a Russian export license, was also probed by the Fountain Committee regarding its $38,974,979 income from foreign aid, as was the giant Cargill Co., of Minneapolis with $29,537,903 in foreign aid in 1958. All were charged by Fountain with receiving windfall profits.

Cargill, whose executives have fought Secretary of Agriculture Orville Freeman when he was governor of Minnesota and opposed Sen. Hubert Humphrey, D-Minn., both of whom helped persuade President Kennedy to permit grain sales to the Communist bloc, is the company which sent the first shipment of 1,200,000 bushels of corn to Communist Hungary.

One Company Pleaded Guilty

Another dealer reported to be interested in the Soviet grain trade is the Bunge Corporation, with headquarters in Buenos Aires but with an active subsidiary in the United States. This subsidiary was prosecuted by the Eisenhower Administration for defrauding the U. S. government of $1,700,000 by slugging wheat.

A Senate agriculture subcommittee investigated the whole matter and the testimony is illuminating. Said E. H. Thornton, manager of the Galveston Wharves:

"I gave orders to slug as many ships as possible."

"What do you mean by slugging a ship?" Asked Sen. Ed Thye, R-Minn.

"Put as much of these off grades on as you can get by with," replied Thornton, referring to the device for diluting high grade grain belonging to the US Commodity Credit Corporation with low standard grain stored in the same elevator.

Senate testimony developed the fact that Bunge Corporation had a special arrangement with Thornton and the Galveston Wharves to give them special consideration in mixing their off-grade wheat with best quality government wheat. One letter to W. G. Kellogg of the Bunge Corporation in Minneapolis from R. E. Bailey in Ft. Worth stated:

"Further, for your information, the Galveston Wharf manager told me that Cargill (another grain dealer negotiating with the Russians) had been applying much pressure to get a good mix out of the Gulf but that he was going to take care of Bunge first as he appreciated the current association."

When this letter was read by Senators to dock Manager Thornton, he commented: "Well, we take care of our customers. Cargill was not a customer of ours."

When dock manager Thornton and Bunge officials were about to go on trial following their indictment, Gov. Allan Shivers of Texas flew to Washington, lunched with President Eisenhower, and the personal indictments were dropped. E. H. Thornton is the father of E. H. Thornton Jr., former Texas Highway Commissioner and Governor Shivers' campaign manager. They were roommates at college.

The Bunge Corporation, as a corporation, pleaded guilty in the Galveston case and was fined $5,000. In Houston where agents for Bunge were caught bribing a William Fellrath, manager of the Houston Elevator, to the tune of $14,229, Bunge agents did go to trial and were convicted.

All of which is why negotiations between the capitalist grain dealers and the communist grain buyers for the Soviet Union should be interesting.

Watching The Taxpayers' Money

The recent Coast Guard plane that flew treasury department officials plus wives to New London, Conn., was for the purpose of honoring a veteran faculty member retiring from the Coast Guard Academy. Undersecretary Robert Roosa and Deputy Undersecretary J. Dewey Daane, both accompanied by their wives, took the trip, together with Assistant Secretary James Reed. He had urged that the treasury brass take more interest in their sea arm—namely the Coast Guard . . . The party attended a luncheon in New London and took a short cruise on Long Island Sound on a Coast Guard yacht, one of the many donated to the Coast Guard Academy by private citizens. As far as I can ascertain, no money was wasted . . .

The party thrown by the Military Sea Transportation System at the Walter Reed Hospital Officers Club was paid for by the MSTS staff out of their own pockets. This is an annual affair held to celebrate MSTS's birthday — now 15 years old. Top shipping magnates were wined and dined but the staff members put up $3.75 apiece, so did some of the guests.

Is France Ready To Do Business With Peking?

By Joseph Alsop

WASHINGTON

One last, rather ugly footnote is required by this reporter's just-completed Asian journey. In brief, if the signs in the Far East mean anything at all, President Kennedy's troubles with President Charles de Gaulle have only just begun.

At the moment, former French Prime Minister Edgar Faure is paying a kind of good-will visit to Communist China, reportedly with official encouragement from the de Gaulle government. More important still, the head of one of the big French oil and general trading companies, Guillaume Georges Picot, left Peking only a couple of weeks ago, after a long stay as the leader of a trade mission representing the French Manufacturers' Association.

In addition, during his recent visit to Washington, French Foreign Minister Maurice Couve de Murville let drop the remark to Secretary of State Dean G. Rusk that it was now "illogical" not to recognize Communist China. From these portents, certain tentative predictions can be made.

First, Gen. de Gaulle will probably recognize the Peking regime if suitable conditions can be negotiated. This means, above all, that the French must not be put in the same humiliating category as the British, who fell over themselves in their haste to recognize Mao Tse-tung's government, but are still not permitted to have a representative in Peking above the rank of charge d' affairs. De Gaulle will only be satisfied with sending an ambassador of full rank, and receiving one in return.

Second, this mutual recognition, if it is arranged, will probably be accompanied by the extension of substantial French credit to the Chinese Communists. The choice of Georges Picot to head the trade mission implies the hope of petroleum exports to China, to replace the oil fuel the Chinese still precariously import from the Soviet Union. If the credit is extended, the terms are likely to be designed to set a pattern, which may be followed by the Japanese and others who are tempted to do business with the Chinese Communists.

The French are quite astute enough, of course, to see that they are highly unlikely to make large profits from trade with Peking. There is also nothing that makes recognition of Communist China more "logical" today than it was in the past. As always in the past, France and her African allies have just, once again, cast their votes against Communist China's admission to the United Nations. But that, apparently, is likely to change next year.

What, then, are the motives of this significant and potentially damaging new maneuver, to which the French government is known to be giving active consideration? The answer appears to be that "motive" is the wrong word.

This is rather a reaction—an instinctive rather than a motivated reaction—to Nikita S. Khrushchev's snubs of Gen. de Gaulle, to the nuclear test-ban treaty, to the slight warm-up of Soviet-American relations, and to other linked phenomena. In other words if Moscow insists on treating President Kennedy as the one Western leader with whom it is worth doing business, the grandeur of France demands a comparable relationship with the other Communist giant.

These are shocking things to say. But shocking things have happened already, and the fact that they have happened increases the probability that a French policy-change towards Peking is in the wind. From Saigon, this reporter sent the news of an elaborate, long-continuing French intrigue to defeat American policy in Viet Nam, by promoting conversation between the North and South Vietnamese "behind the backs of the Americans".

The phrase is quoted from President Ngo Dinh Diem's brother, Ngo Dinh Nhu, who is both the primary target and the intended main spring of the French intrigue. South Viet Nam would have been sold out to the Communists to the North if Ngo Dinh Nhu had succumbed to the quite elaborate French-organized petitions (which included careful softening-up by the French ambassador to Saigon, the well-timed Olympian come-on statement by President de Gaulle, and a private message from the North Vietnamese Premier, Pham Van Dong). The option, it must be added, is always open to Nhu.

On extremely specious grounds, the existence of this intrigue was officially denied to the U. S. Ambassador in Paris, Charles E. Bohlen. The denial merely increases the unpleasantness of the facts, which cannot be doubted. The French government has, of course, previously indicated lack of sympathy with U. S. policy in Viet Nam. But there is the longest possible step between an honest indication of lack of sympathy and embarking on a secret intrigue to defeat the policy of a presumed ally—with no notice given to the ally, of course. From these facts, further French intentions must be judged.

POLITICOS PONDERING—The thought that former President Eisenhower might be persuaded to accept the 1964 GOP vice presidential nomination seems to be creeping into the press in a persistent manner these days.

One story has it that Ike himself has looked into the legalities surrounding the constitutional amendment prohibiting a third presidential term and has found that there is no constiutional bar to him running for vice president and to succeed to the presidency should he and his running-mate win the election.

Adding fuel to this speculation is the fact that Eisenhower is playing the role of Republican Party sage to the hilt. He has produced a constantly expanding list of names who in his opinion are GOP presidential potentials. He speaks out on many matters of current national and international concern. He is available to reporters at his Gettysburg retreat — and seems to have vastly revised his low opinion of the press of his White House days.

Most competent authorities agree that Eisenhower could legally hold the office of vice president. Further, if he were nominated and elected to the position, it is hard to think of how the question could be brought into the courts for a decision. In other words, if he did run and was elected, he undoubtedly would be able to serve. And obviously, if this occurred and his running mate was incapacitated, he would succeed to the presidency without a court challenge.

It is precisely at this point that the matter of Eisenhower for vice president becomes an abstraction rather than a real political factor. For the political opposition would campaign against him on grounds that the GOP had resorted to a subterfuge to circumvent the Constitution and place him back in the White House. And the transparency of the maneuver would be a convincing argument for some to vote against the Republican ticket.

In other words, what he could do legally is a moot question when placed against the political reality of voter oppositoin to anything that smacks of underhandedness.

Scientists Support Fluoridation Of Water

By Theodore R. Van Dellen

The practice of adding fluoride to water supplies at the rate of 1 part per million is highly desirable as a public health practice in areas where the natural content of fluoride in water is low. This is a means of supplying a nutrient important for the formation of caries-resident enamel.

This statement was made in 1958 by the National Academy of Science and demonstrates how our most distinguished group of scientists feel about fluoridation. Many other medical and dental groups have publicized their support of the project.

Research on the relationship between fluoride and dental decay goes back to the 19th century. Fluoridation of water has been practiced for about 30 years. This substance is not a drug or a medicine and is present in foods and water in many parts of our country. Natural fluorides (.7 per million) are found in nearly 2,000 communities.

Only a few states have no water sources with natural fluoride levels of .7 ppm. or more. Many careful studies in these areas have demonstrated its ability to harden teeth and bone. This becomes more and more evident when the results are compared with identical studies conducted in regions where the water contains none or too little fluoride to protect the teeth.

The logical answer is to add small amounts of this nutrient to the water supply to protect children living in areas where the deficiency exists. Fluoridation is nothing more than adjusting the composition of the water to a point where it hardens teeth and strengthens bone. It takes only 1 part in a million to do the trick.

The plan has proved effective in children who are caries-prone. These youngsters are plagued by cavities and often lose all their teeth by early adulthood.

The use of fluoride tablets is not as effective as a dentifrice. Brushing with a fluoridated product is most effective during the period when the teeth are erupting.

TOMORROW: The flu season.

EYEBROW CYST

Mrs. H. writes: My 3 year old has had a lump at the end of one eyebrow since age 1. It has not grown. The doctor thinks it is a fatty cyst and wants to have it removed. Do you think this is the thing to do?

REPLY

Yes, but when in doubt, always get another opinion.

RH NOT INVOLVED

P. C. writes: Is a blue baby due to the Rh factor?

REPLY

No. The majority of so-called blue babies have a congenital heart defect. The abnormality prevents most of the blood from being oxygenated (purified) in the lungs. As a result it remains bluish and imparts this color to the skin.

COLDS AND CARBOHYDRATES

R. M. writes: Is there any relationship between eating carbohydrates and getting many colds?

REPLY

No, unless the person limits the diet to starches and sugars and resistance falls so low, infections or other diseases develop.

USES OF INSULIN

C. M. writes: Is insulin given for anything besides diabetes?

REPLY

Insulin has been used in the past in acute alcoholism, underweight, and as shock therapy. These methods of treatment seldom are employed today.

RUNNING EAR

L. H. writes: Could a bad head cold cause a watery secretion from the ears?

REPLY

Yes, provided there were openings in both eardrums as a result of previous infection or blockage of the eustachian tubes. This would be most unlikely.

To the limit of space questions pertaining to the prevention of diseases will be answered. Personal replies will be made when return stamped envelope is enclosed. Telephone inquiries not accepted. Dr. Van Dellen will not make diagnoses or prescribe for individual diseases.

Try And Stop Me

By Bennett Cerf

A French playwright visited our shores this season with his new and beautiful wife in tow. Unbelievably jealous, he had her shadowed constantly by private detectives until American friends told him, "We don't do things that way over here. Your behavior is an insult to all womanhood. Call off those gumshoes immediately." Reluctantly the French playwright followed their directive. The very next day his bride slapped him across the face, crying, "You do not love me any more!"

A youngster's favorite uncle, unwed at thirty-five, finally succumbed to the allure of a trim young miss. A week before the wedding the youngster asked his mother. "They give them everything they want to eat the last day, don't they?"

Eugene Field once told how a large group of Illinois legislators were vacation-bound on a train that was held up by bandits. "After relieving the bandits of their cash and watches," concluded Field, "the legislators proceeded on their journey with increased enthusiasm and joie de vivre."

Jim Bishop: Reporter

By Jim Bishop

DETROIT, Michigan — The city is big and bustling, busting out of its breeches. By day, a veil of coppery smoke lays over the sky from Dearborn to Belle Isle. The ore smelters pulse, the fender moulders punch, the gears mesh, the trains inch in and out of sidings, the furnaces roar, and the new cars come out glistening, like millions of shiny toys.

Detroit is, and has been, one of the most important cities in America. It has good superhighways, two big airports, and a downtown section of archaic hotels and movie houses, built around a park and fountain called Grand Circus. It is my second visit to the city and I took a night time look, and it has little to offer in the way of amusement or culture.

There are few supper clubs; a couple of strip joints; some movie houses. A city which concentrates on making a buck has to learn how to spend one. This one has a brand new convention hall—as beautiful as any I've seen—but as empty as a glass head. "What do you do here at night?" I asked the question everywhere.

In the Candlelight Room at the Statler-Hilton, a stout waitress shrugged. "Nothing," she said. "Go to a movie. I bowl, sometimes." I asked a policeman. "If you're thinking of nightlife," he said, grinning and rubbing his chin, "we have none to speak of. There was a play at the Fisher Theatre a few nights ago, but it's gone."

Mrs. W. F. Bavinger and Mrs. Katie Stevenson of Groose Pointe, thought about it. Then they shrugged. "Not much," they said. "Detroit is not a fun city." There is an old aphorism that all work and no play makes Edsel a dull boy. Work hours are down to 40 a week and diminishing. There is more money in circulation than ever before, and a lot of dark hours in which to spend it.

What is happening in Detroit is happening elsewhere. This city is not the worst offer among the big ones. I'd pick Los Angeles. For recreation, people there eat out. That's it. In Boston, there is an opportunity to attend a symphony, go to a play, a fast-stepping nightclub, or attend a top-flight lecture. But there are few Bostons.

Miami is full of varied amusements, but it's a tourist city. It is designed for fun, and 60 cents out of every dollar it earns comes from race tracks, hotels, night clubs, jai-alai, sports, fishing, opera, fights, sun-bathing and golf. It is the opposite of Detroit.

I'm not sure where the fault lies, but I can make a guess. Fun and culture—(the two are often combined)—are worthless unless the people support them. Most of us are rooted to the television screen night after night. As a nation, we don't even read worthwhile books any more.

There are good motion pictures and we do not go out to see them. Last night, Kelly and I went to the United Artists Theatre here to see Cleopatra. I counted 178 persons in the place. They were huddled together, mostly in the rear of the center aisle. A few were in loges.

My position—for whatever it is worth—is that 180,000,000 Americans should support all of the amusements, all of the sports, all of the cultural endeavors. Once upon a time, we supported summer time band concerts in our parks. Almost any town could afford a renowned pianist for a one-night stand. Road shows of Broadway hits would play a week or more in any large city. Good orators could enunciate the same lecture in a hundred cities a year.

Nor am I opposed to television. I'm a late show addict. I'm hooked. T.V. is an important part of our lives, and becoming more important as time goes on. Too much of it fosters laziness. Getting dressed to go out at night has become a hardship. America has become a sports shirt and slacks civilization. More people are acquainted with the name of John Daly, for example, than the name of his father-in-law Chief Justice Earl Warren of the United States Supreme Court.

On a program called Candid Camera, the nation roared with laughter when citizens of a town were asked who Lyndon Johnson is. The best reply was: "I know the name, but I'm not sure where he lives. Why don't you try the filling station and look it up in the phone book?" It is good to be able to laugh at our own stupidity, but it is also good to do something about it.

As poor as we are—in amusements and culture—our children are going to be worse. The only only books they read are school books they read are school know are (1) the telephone! (2) a date; (3) television.

That's living?. . .

Hunger For Clear Choices

When Richard Austen — or Rab — Butler was denied the Prime Minister's post in Britain for the second time in seven years by the Conservative Party "establishment," it seemed to many to constitute a rank injustice. For it was Mr. Butler, in company with Iain Macleod, who had done most of the hard dog work that had gone into the post-World War II revitalization of British conservatism. It must have caused Mr. Butler excruciating pain to see the Prime Minister's portfolio go to the relatively unknown Lord Home.

The by-passing of Butler, however, seems to be quite in line with world trends in political affairs, for everywhere there seems to be a hunger for what might be called polarized political representation. In his own way Rab Butler has been an "opening to the Left" man in British conservative circles, which is to say that his political outlines are smudged. He has been against the Laborites and the socialists, yes. But when Butler commenced his work some fifteen years ago of refurbishing the Tory "image," it seemed politically necessary to accept most of the Laborite Welfare State measures.

Butler, an intellectual, labored hard and long to give Welfarism a conservative twist. But in doing this he incurred the slur that he was a "me too" character. True enough, he talked of preserving a society in which incentives would bulk larger than "fair share" restrictions. But the Butler formulas usually ended in a "yes-but" area — "yes, we should encourage private industry, but we must retain the social services to which we have become accustomed."

The Rab Butler "image," then, is of a man of the middle, a centrist. But the centrists everywhere are having difficulty these days. They lose votes in Italy when they bid for socialist support; they get nowhere in de Gaulle's France. It was not so long ago that a Wendell Willkie, a Thomas Dewey, or a non-political General Eisenhower, could marshal the big battalions behind them in fighting for the supreme prize of the American Presidency. These were modern "Republicans," very like the "progressive Conservatives" who constituted the Rab Butler-Iain Macleod wing of the British Tory Party. But in 1963 "modern Republicanism" is like a boat without oars. Goldwater, a man of clear outlines, is drawing more and more young Republicans to his standard while Nelson Rockefeller, an American version of Rab Butler, is having his difficulties.

No doubt there is some flummery and insincerity in the turn toward conservative polarization on the part of both British Tories and American Republicans. But there is sound instinct, too. The world is getting tired of mealy-mouthedness. People in the democracies expect their leaders to compromise once they are in office, but they are beginning to ask that compromises be made with some regard to general mandates and general philosophical goals.

The British Conservative who is willing to compromise toward socialism as a limit is giving way to the Conservative who wants the compromise to go at least a short distance the other way. Lord Home, a man of clear speech, has suddenly become preferable to Rab Butler, the man of blurred edges. And Barry Goldwater, instead of being criticized as a "Neanderthal" for preferring freedom to security, is evoking a curious respect even among those who disagree with some of the things he says.

This is not to say that either the British Tories or the American Republicans, if they are to be the rulers in their respective countries throughout the late Nineteen Sixties, will abolish the progressive income tax, get rid of all government controls, and abandon the UN to the Afro-Asian bloc. But it does mean that new "working directions" will be instituted.

More and more attempts will be made to mitigate the steepness of progressive taxation in the middle and upper brackets in order to encourage the sort of investment that multiplies into many jobs. As Britain's Foreign Minister, Lord Home took the unprecedented step a few weeks ago of using the UN as a real sounding board for British interests. A conservative Republican in the White House would almost certainly insist on a similar UN policy for America.

Suddenly it is precision in political definition that people are coming to want. The rise of the Lord Homes and the Barry Goldwaters in Anglo-American politics is nothing strange. It merely acknowledges a trend.

Soviet-U. S. Wheat Negotiations Bring Together Amazing Contrasts

By Drew Pearson

WASHINGTON — Some of the most amazing contrasts in business personalities have been sitting across the table from each other negotiating the sale of American wheat to Soviet Russia.

On one side of the table are members of the Soviet Ministry of Bread who have spent their lives in the Communist Party. On the other side are some of the big business leaders of capitalism, most of them contributors to the Republican Party, most of them anti-Kennedy, most of them investigated by Congress for profiting on US surplus grain. One was prosecuted for mixing Canadian wheat unfit for human consumption with good American wheat and palming it off on unsuspecting buyers in Europe.

Unlike the Canadian - Soviet wheat deal, which was arranged government to government, the Kennedy Administration has stepped aside and let the big grain dealers of the northwest handle the Soviet sale and fix the prices.

All the Kennedy Administration did was to OK the sale under certain ground rules. The rest is up to hard-boiled Communist negotiators on one side and hard-boiled capitalist negotiators on the other. If they get together there should be definite hope for co-existence.

Chief Soviet negotiator is Leonid Matveyev, heard of Eksporthleb, which means "bread export."

On the other side is Continental Grain, which rolled up a total of $112,230,454 income from handling foreign aid shipments for the Eisenhower Administration in 1958 and was investigated by the House Government Operations Committee under Rep. L. H. Fountain, D-N.C. The Garnac Grain Co., another applicant for a Russian export license, was also probed by the Fountain Committee regarding its $38,974,979 income from foreign aid, as was the giant Cargill Co., of Minneapolis with $29,537,903 in foreign aid in 1958. All were charged by Fountain with receiving windfall profits.

Cargill, whose executives have fought Secretary of Agriculture Orville Freeman when he was governor of Minnesota and opposed Sen. Hubert Humphrey, D-Minn., both of whom helped persuade President Kennedy to permit grain sales to the Communist bloc, is the company which sent the first shipment of 1,200,000 bushels of corn to Communist Hungary.

One Company Pleaded Guilty

Another dealer reported to be interested in the Soviet grain trade is the Bunge Corporation, with headquarters in Buenos Aires but with an active subsidiary in the United States. This subsidiary was prosecuted by the Eisenhower Administration for defrauding the U. S. government of $1,700,000 by slugging wheat.

A Senate agriculture subcommittee investigated the whole matter and the testimony is illuminating. Said E. H. Thornton, manager of the Galveston Wharves:

"I gave orders to slug as many ships as possible."

"What do you mean by slugging a ship?" Asked Sen. Ed Thye, R-Minn.

"Put as much of these off grades on as you can get by with," replied Thornton, referring to the device for diluting high grade grain belonging to the US Commodity Credit Corporation with low standard grain stored in the same elevator.

Senate testimony developed the fact that Bunge Corporation had a special arrangement with Thornton and the Galveston Wharves to give them special consideration in mixing their off-grade wheat with best quality government wheat. One letter to W. G. Kellogg of the Bunge Corporation in Minneapolis from R. E. Bailey in Ft. Worth stated:

"Further, for your information, the Galveston Wharf manager told me that Cargill (another grain dealer negotiating with the Russians) had been applying much pressure to get a good mix out of the Gulf but that he was going to take care of Bunge first as he appreciated the current association."

When this letter was read by Senators to dock Manager Thornton, he commented: "Well, we take care of our customers. Cargill was not a customer of ours."

When dock manager Thornton and Bunge officials were about to go on trial following their indictment, Gov. Allan Shivers of Texas flew to Washington, lunched with President Eisenhower, and the personal indictments were dropped. E. H. Thornton is the father of E. H. Thornton Jr., former Texas Highway Commissioner and Governor Shivers' campaign manager. They were roommates at college.

The Bunge Corporation, as a corporation, pleaded guilty in the Galveston case and was fined $5,000. In Houston where agents for Bunge were caught bribing a William Fellrath, manager of the Houston Elevator, to the tune of $14,229, Bunge agents did go to trial and were convicted.

All of which is why negotiations between the capitalist grain dealers and the communist grain buyers for the Soviet Union should be interesting.

Watching The Taxpayers' Money

The recent Coast Guard plane that flew treasury department officials plus wives to New London, Conn., was for the purpose of honoring a veteran faculty member retiring from the Coast Guard Academy. Undersecretary Robert Roosa and Deputy Undersecretary J. Dewey Daane, both accompanied by their wives, took the trip, together with Assistant Secretary James Reed. He had urged that the treasury brass take more interest in their sea arm—namely the Coast Guard . . . The party attended a luncheon in New London and took a short cruise on Long Island Sound on a Coast Guard yacht, one of the many donated to the Coast Guard Academy by private citizens. As far as I can ascertain, no money was wasted . . .

The party thrown by the Military Sea Transportation System at the Walter Reed Hospital Officers Club was paid for by the MSTS staff out of their own pockets. This is an annual affair held to celebrate MSTS's birthday — now 15 years old. Top shipping magnates were wined and dined but the staff members put up $3.75 apiece, so did some of the guests.

Is France Ready To Do Business With Peking?

By Joseph Alsop

WASHINGTON

One last, rather ugly footnote is required by this reporter's just-completed Asian journey. In brief, if the signs in the Far East mean anything at all, President Kennedy's troubles with President Charles de Gaulle have only just begun.

At the moment, former French Prime Minister Edgar Faure is paying a kind of good-will visit to Communist China, reportedly with official encouragement from the de Gaulle government. More important still, the head of one of the big French oil and general trading companies, Guillaume Georges Picot, left Peking only a couple of weeks ago, after a long stay as the leader of a trade mission representing the French Manufacturers' Association.

In addition, during his recent visit to Washington, French Foreign Minister Maurice Couve de Murville let drop the remark to Secretary of State Dean G. Rusk that it was now "illogical" not to recognize Communist China. From these portents, certain tentative predictions can be made.

First, Gen. de Gaulle will probably recognize the Peking regime if suitable conditions can be negotiated. This means, above all, that the French must not be put in the same humiliating category as the British, who fell over themselves in their haste to recognize Mao Tse-tung's government, but are still not permitted to have a representative in Peking above the rank of charge d' affairs. De Gaulle will only be satisfied with sending an ambassador of full rank, and receiving one in return.

Second, this mutual recognition, if it is arranged, will probably be accompanied by the extension of substantial French credit to the Chinese Communists. The choice of Georges Picot to head the trade mission implies the hope of petroleum exports to China, to replace the oil fuel the Chinese still precariously import from the Soviet Union. If the credit is extended, the terms are likely to be designed to set a pattern, which may be followed by the Japanese and others who are tempted to do business with the Chinese Communists.

The French are quite astute enough, of course, to see that they are highly unlikely to make large profits from trade with Peking. There is also nothing that makes recognition of Communist China more "logical" today than it was in the past. As always in the past, France and her African allies have just, once again, cast their votes against Communist China's admission to the United Nations. But that, apparently, is likely to change next year.

What, then, are the motives of this significant and potentially damaging new maneuver, to which the French government is known to be giving active consideration? The answer appears to be that "motive" is the wrong word.

This is rather a reaction—an instinctive rather than a motivated reaction—to Nikita S. Khrushchev's snubs of Gen. de Gaulle, to the nuclear test-ban treaty, to the slight warm-up of Soviet-American relations, and to other linked phenomena. In other words if Moscow insists on treating President Kennedy as the one Western leader with whom it is worth doing business, the grandeur of France demands a comparable relationship with the other Communist giant.

These are shocking things to say. But shocking things have happened already, and the fact that they have happened increases the probability that a French policy-change towards Peking is in the wind. From Saigon, this reporter sent the news of an elaborate, long-continuing French intrigue to defeat American policy in Viet Nam, by promoting conversation between the North and South Vietnamese "behind the backs of the Americans".

The phrase is quoted from President Ngo Dinh Diem's brother, Ngo Dinh Nhu, who is both the primary target and the intended main spring of the French intrigue. South Viet Nam would have been sold out to the Communists to the North if Ngo Dinh Nhu had succumbed to the quite elaborate French-organized petitions (which included careful softening-up by the French ambassador to Saigon, the well-timed Olympian come-on statement by President de Gaulle, and a private message from the North Vietnamese Premier, Pham Van Dong). The option, it must be added, is always open to Nhu.

On extremely specious grounds, the existence of this intrigue was officially denied to the U. S. Ambassador in Paris, Charles E. Bohlen. The denial merely increases the unpleasantness of the facts, which cannot be doubted. The French government has, of course, previously indicated lack of sympathy with U. S. policy in Viet Nam. But there is the longest possible step between an honest indication of lack of sympathy and embarking on a secret intrigue to defeat the policy of a presumed ally—with no notice given to the ally, of course. From these facts, further French intentions must be judged.

POLITICOS PONDERING—The thought that former President Eisenhower might be persuaded to accept the 1964 GOP vice presidential nomination seems to be creeping into the press in a persistent manner these days.

One story has it that Ike himself has looked into the legalities surrounding the constitutional amendment prohibiting a third presidential term and has found that there is no constiutional bar to him running for vice president and to succeed to the presidency should he and his running-mate win the election.

Adding fuel to this speculation is the fact that Eisenhower is playing the role of Republican Party sage to the hilt. He has produced a constantly expanding list of names who in his opinion are GOP presidential potentials. He speaks out on many matters of current national and international concern. He is available to reporters at his Gettysburg retreat — and seems to have vastly revised his low opinion of the press of his White House days.

Most competent authorities agree that Eisenhower could legally hold the office of vice president. Further, if he were nominated and elected to the position, it is hard to think of how the question could be brought into the courts for a decision. In other words, if he did run and was elected, he undoubtedly would be able to serve. And obviously, if this occurred and his running mate was incapacitated, he would succeed to the presidency without a court challenge.

It is precisely at this point that the matter of Eisenhower for vice president becomes an abstraction rather than a real political factor. For the political opposition would campaign against him on grounds that the GOP had resorted to a subterfuge to circumvent the Constitution and place him back in the White House. And the transparency of the maneuver would be a convincing argument for some to vote against the Republican ticket.

In other words, what he could do legally is a moot question when placed against the political reality of voter oppositoin to anything that smacks of underhandedness.

Scientists Support Fluoridation Of Water

By Theodore R. Van Dellen

The practice of adding fluoride to water supplies at the rate of 1 part per million is highly desirable as a public health practice in areas where the natural content of fluoride in water is low. This is a means of supplying a nutrient important for the formation of caries-resident enamel.

This statement was made in 1958 by the National Academy of Science and demonstrates how our most distinguished group of scientists feel about fluoridation. Many other medical and dental groups have publicized their support of the project.

Research on the relationship between fluoride and dental decay goes back to the 19th century. Fluoridation of water has been practiced for about 30 years. This substance is not a drug or a medicine and is present in foods and water in many parts of our country. Natural fluorides (.7 per million) are found in nearly 2,000 communities.

Only a few states have no water sources with natural fluoride levels of .7 ppm. or more. Many careful studies in these areas have demonstrated its ability to harden teeth and bone. This becomes more and more evident when the results are compared with identical studies conducted in regions where the water contains none or too little fluoride to protect the teeth.

The logical answer is to add small amounts of this nutrient to the water supply to protect children living in areas where the deficiency exists. Fluoridation is nothing more than adjusting the composition of the water to a point where it hardens teeth and strengthens bone. It takes only 1 part in a million to do the trick.

The plan has proved effective in children who are caries-prone. These youngsters are plagued by cavities and often lose all their teeth by early adulthood.

The use of fluoride tablets is not as effective as a dentifrice. Brushing with a fluoridated product is most effective during the period when the teeth are erupting.

EYEBROW CYST

Mrs. H. writes: My 3 year old has had a lump at the end of one eyebrow since age 1. It has not grown. The doctor thinks it is a fatty cyst and wants to have it removed. Do you think this is the thing to do?

REPLY

Yes, but when in doubt, always get another opinion.

RH NOT INVOLVED

P. C. writes: Is a blue baby due to the Rh factor?

REPLY

No. The majority of so-called blue babies have a congenital heart defect. The abnormality prevents most of the blood from being oxygenated (purified) in the lungs. As a result it remains bluish and imparts this color to the skin.

COLDS AND CARBOHYDRATES

R. M. writes: Is there any relationship between eating carbohydrates and getting many colds?

REPLY

No, unless the person limits the diet to starches and sugars and resistance falls so low, infections or other diseases develop.

USES OF INSULIN

C. M. writes: Is insulin given for anything besides diabetes?

REPLY

Insulin has been used in the past in acute alcoholism, underweight, and as shock therapy. These methods of treatment seldom are employed today.

RUNNING EAR

L. H. writes: Could a bad head cold cause a watery secretion from the ears?

REPLY

Yes, provided there were openings in both eardrums as a result of previous infection or blockage of the eustachian tubes. This would be most unlikely.

To the limit of space questions pertaining to the prevention of diseases will be answered. Personal replies will be made when return stamped envelope is enclosed. Telephone inquiries not accepted. Dr. Van Dellen will not make diagnoses or prescribe for individual diseases.

Try And Stop Me

By Bennett Cerf

A French playwright visited our shores this season with his new and beautiful wife in tow. Unbelievably jealous, he had her shadowed constantly by private detectives until American friends told him, "We don't do things that way over here. Your behavior is an insult to all womanhood. Call off those gumshoes immediately." Reluctantly the French playwright followed their directive. The very next day his bride slapped him across the face, crying, "You do not love me any more!"

A youngster's favorite uncle, unwed at thirty-five, finally succumbed to the allure of a trim young miss. A week before the wedding the youngster asked his mother. "They give them everything they want to eat the last day, don't they?"

Eugene Field once told how a large group of Illinois legislators were vacation-bound on a train that was held up by bandits. "After relieving the bandits of their cash and watches," concluded Field, "the legislators proceeded on their journey with increased enthusiasm and joie de vivre."

Jim Bishop: Reporter

By Jim Bishop

DETROIT, Michigan — The city is big and bustling, busting out of its breeches. By day, a veil of coppery smoke lays over the sky from Dearborn to Belle Isle. The ore smelters pulse, the fender moulders punch, the gears mesh, the trains inch in and out of sidings, the furnaces roar, and the new cars come out glistening, like millions of shiny toys.

Detroit is, and has been, one of the most important cities in America. It has good superhighways, two big airports, and a downtown section of archaic hotels and movie houses, built around a park and fountain called Grand Circus. It is my second visit to the city and I took a night time look, and it has little to offer in the way of amusement or culture.

There are few supper clubs; a couple of strip joints; some movie houses. A city which concentrates on making a buck has to learn how to spend one. This one has a brand new convention hall—as beautiful as any I've seen—but as empty as a glass head. "What do you do here at night?" I asked the question everywhere.

In the Candlelight Room at the Statler-Hilton, a stout waitress shrugged. "Nothing," she said. "Go to a movie. I bowl, sometimes." I asked a policeman. "If you're thinking of nightlife," he said, grinning and rubbing his chin, "we have none to speak of. There was a play at the Fisher Theatre a few nights ago, but it's gone."

Mrs. W. F. Bavinger and Mrs. Katie Stevenson of Groose Pointe, thought about it. Then they shrugged. "Not much," they said. "Detroit is not a fun city." There is an old aphorism that all work and no play makes Edsel a dull boy. Work hours are down to 40 a week and diminishing. There is more money in circulation than ever before, and a lot of dark hours in which to spend it.

What is happening in Detroit is happening elsewhere. This city is not the worst offer among the big ones. I'd pick Los Angeles. For recreation, people there eat out. That's it. In Boston, there is an opportunity to attend a symphony, go to a play, a fast-stepping nightclub, or attend a top-flight lecture. But there are few Bostons.

Miami is full of varied amusements, but it's a tourist city. It is designed for fun, and 60 cents out of every dollar it earns comes from race tracks, hotels, night clubs, jai-alai, sports, fishing, opera, fights, sun-bathing and golf. It is the opposite of Detroit.

I'm not sure where the fault lies, but I can make a guess. Fun and culture—(the two are often combined)—are worthless unless the people support them. Most of us are rooted to the television screen night after night. As a nation, we don't even read worthwhile books any more.

There are good motion pictures and we do not go out to see them. Last night, Kelly and I went to the United Artists Theatre here to see Cleopatra. I counted 178 persons in the place. They were huddled together, mostly in the rear of the center aisle. A few were in loges.

My position—for whatever it is worth—is that 180,000,000 Americans should support all of the amusements, all of the sports, all of the cultural endeavors. Once upon a time, we supported summer time band concerts in our parks. Almost any town could afford a renowned pianist for a one-night stand. Road shows of Broadway hits would play a week or more in any large city. Good orators could enunciate the same lecture in a hundred cities a year.

Nor am I opposed to television. I'm a late show addict. I'm hooked. T.V. is an important part of our lives, and becoming more important as time goes on. Too much of it fosters laziness. Getting dressed to go out at night has become a hardship. America has become a sports shirt and slacks civilization. More people are acquainted with the name of John Daly, for example, than the name of his father-in-law Chief Justice Earl Warren of the United States Supreme Court.

On a program called Candid Camera, the nation roared with laughter when citizens of a town were asked who Lyndon Johnson is. The best reply was: "I know the name, but I'm not sure where he lives. Why don't you try the filling station and look it up in the phone book?" It is good to be able to laugh at our own stupidity, but it is also good to do something about it.

As poor as we are—in amusements and culture—our children are going to be worse. The only only books they read are school books they read are school know are (1) the telephone! (2) a date; (3) television.

That's living?. . .

Packers Beat Baltimore, 34-20; Giants Trounce Browns, 33-6

Pitts' 34-Yard Touchdown Run Defeats Colts

Green Bay Cops 6th Straight, Remains Tied With Chicago

By GEORGE BOWEN

BALTIMORE (AP) — Halfback Elijah Pitts, one of two substitutes in the backfield, raced 34 yards for a touchdown late in the fourth quarter Sunday to give the Green Bay Packers a 34-20 victory over the Baltimore Colts.

The victory was the sixth straight for the substitute-stocked Packers and tied them for first place in the Western Conference of the National Football League with the Chicago Bears, their opening day conqueror.

Pitts was playing for Tom Moore, who was inactivated by a pinched nerve in his neck. His touchdown run, set up with a great block by guard Fred Thurston, broke a 20-20 tie which the Colts had forged on 17 points in the last half.

Fullback Jim Taylor added his second touchdown on a 17-yard run after the Colts failed to make a first down on their 20 when Henry Jordan brought down quarterback John Unitas in his tracks.

John Roach, playing quarterback for the injured Bart Starr, kept the Packers moving and threw an 11-yard touchdown pass to Marv Fleming, Utah rookie at end for Ron Kramer who hurt a knee early in the first half.

Fleming's touchdown, Taylor's first TD on a plunge and a 46-yard field goal by Jerry Kramer provided Green Bay with a 17-3 halftime lead. During the wild second quarter, the Packers lost fumbles on the Colt 5 and 3. They intercepted two passes and recovered a Colt fumble.

The Colts, who could make only two first downs in the first half, came to life in the third quarter and scored a touchdown in six plays covering 80 yards. Unitas threw 13 yards over the goal to Lenny Moore to reduce the score to 20-10.

Jim Martin made it 20-13 with his second field goal after the Colts were denied a chance for a touchdown when Unitas was penalized for intentionally grounding the ball.

The Colts tied the score on a 48-yard pass play, John Mackey making a spectacular overhead catch.

After Jordan blocked an attempted 47-yard field goal by Martin, the Packers were moved into winning position for Pitts' run on a pass interference call against Lenny Lyles on Max McGee.

Roach completed nine passes in 20 attempts for 156 yards and one touchdown. He had two passes intercepted.

Fort Hill Wins Seventh, Ridgeley Edges LaSalle

Frostburg Blanks Gallaudet Again; PSC Takes Beating

Fort Hill's high-powered Sentinels, barreling along toward an unbeaten season, trounced South Hagerstown 34-0 Saturday night in the Hub City for their seventh straight triumph.

Previously unbeaten Romney met disaster Saturday night at Front Royal, Va., dropping a 19-13 decision to John S. Mosby Academy. Meyersdale whipped Shade Township, 38-0, for its eighth straight 1963 conquest.

Ridgeley High made an early touchdown stand up for a 7-0 victory over LaSalle in a PVC tussle under the stadium lights.

Frostburg State College hopped back on the victory trail over the weekend, blanking Gallaudet College 19-0 in the Bison's Homecoming game at Washington. Wesley College of Dover (Del.) spoiled Potomac State's Homecoming, crushing the Catamounts 52-13.

In a battle of unbeaten but once-tied teams at Shepherdstown, the Shepherd Rams nosed out Western Maryland College, 14-10.

North Carolina School for the Deaf romped to a 43-12 win over West Virginia School for the Deaf Saturday afternoon at Romney.

Chalking up 20 points in the first period, Fort Hill had a surprisingly easy time of it against the Rebels. The victory was Fort Hill's fourth in as many CVAL starts and left South with a 1-2-1 league record.

Halfback Rich Robinson scored on a 60-yard punt return and a seven-yard rush, and passed 15 yards to Wally Harper for another score. Gene Zais got off a 61-yard punt return for a touchdown and Jim Mertens, who kicked four extra points, sneaked over from the one-foot line for the Sentinel's final tally.

Ridgeley's blackhawks scored the first time they got their hands on the ball, then withstood repeated threats by the Explorers in notching their fifth win in eight starts and handing LaSalle its sixth loss in seven tries.

The Blackhawks took over on the LaSalle 16 after the latter team lost the ball on downs when a bad pass from center prevented Jim Hudson from getting off a punt. Jim Bauman took the ball over from the two four plays later and Tony Amato added the point from placement.

Quarterback George Allen, filling in for the ailing Charlie Robinson, fired three touchdown strikes as Frostburg State upped its record to 4-2 and beat Gallaudet for the second time this year. The Bobcats downed the Bisons, 27-0, at Frostburg on October 4.

Allen, a sophomore, hit Joe Nicewarner twice on scoring aerials covering 38 and 50 yards, and connected with Ed Shoup on a 37-yarder.

Unbeaten Wesley, ranked second nationally among junior colleges, exploded for four second period touchdowns after a scoreless stalemate in the first quarter.

An 87-yard kickoff return by Dave Smith and a 50-yard return to paydirt of a pass interception by Bruce Marine highlighted the Delaware eleven's sixth straight 1963 vistory and 14th over a two-season span.

Bert Holcomb passed 32 yards to Bob Thorn for one PSC TD and plunged over from the two for the other. The loss was the fifth in six games for the Catamounts and their second in Tri-State Conference competition.

Ex-Ridgeley High gridder Frank Lambert—in his only appearance in the game—passed 11 yards to Charlie Lutman for a touchdown to give Shepherd its come-from-behind win over the Terrors.

Shepherd's other score came on an 11-yard pass from Ashley Scarborough to Wayman Everly. Torry Confer scored on a plunge and Wilford Wrightson booted a 26-yard field goal for the losers.

Jerry Shuffler rambled 36 yards for a six-pointer after recovering Jerry Mezzatesta's fumble, and also crossed the goal on a four-yard run. Rig Burroughs, son of head coach Jack Burroughs, accounted for the Virginians' other TD on a 14-yard scamper.

Joe Breinig charged nine yards for Romney's initial tally and Don Wade connected with Robert Wolford on a 19-yard touchdown pass in the final period.

Bears Defeat Eagles, 16-7

Passing Of Wade Features Victory

CHICAGO (AP)—Bill Wade's passes stoked up touchdown drives of 80 and 67 yards Sunday and launched the Chicago Bears to a 16-7 victory over the Philadelphia Eagles to keep a share of the Western Conference lead of the National Football League.

The victory gave the Bears a 6-1 record, the same as the Green Bay Packers who defeated Baltimore 34-20.

Chicago grabbed a 10-0 lead in the first quarter on Roger LeClerc's 45-yard field goal and a 67-yard thrust in seven plays, capped by Wade's 23-yard scoring shot to Joe Marconi.

The Eagles sliced the margin to 10-7 at the half on a 70-yard march. Sub quarterback King Hill's three tosses to Pete Retzlaff were good for 30 yards and his five-yard pitch to Tommy McDonald climaxed it.

The Bears' clincher came at the end of an 80-yard march including passes to Mike Ditka and Marconi for 70 yards. Willie Gallimore went across from the 7. Bob Jencks, kick hit the goal post.

List Of Perfect Record Teams Sliced To Four Over Weekend

Wisconsin, Pitt Among Five Losing For First Time

By HUGH FULLERTON JR.
Associated Press Sports Writer

On the kind of day that makes "upset" sound slightly ridiculous in reference to college football, Wisconsin, Pittsburgh, Dartmouth, Mississippi State and Duke suffered their first defeats of the season. Notre Dame, Southern Methodist, Florida and Northwestern, among others, received rather unforseen setbacks.

The result left mighty Texas, Auburn, Princeton and Bowling Green as the only major college teams still unbeaten and untied.

Mississippi and unheralded Memphis State remained undefeated, although they played a scoreless tie against each other early in the season. And things are looking up for such once-beaten teams as Ohio State, Oklahoma, Missouri, Louisiana State, Navy, Syracuse and twice-beaten Southern California.

Texas fans chanted "We're No. 1" as the Longhorns eked out a 10-6 victory over Rice Saturday night. They probably were right, but it wasn't an easy game. Auburn didn't play last weekend, Princeton overpowered Cornell 51-14 to go to the top of Ivy League and Bowling Green scored its sixth this season and its eighth straight, 18-3, over Kent State to take over with the longest current major college winning streak.

Ohio State knocked Wisconsin's defending champions out of the Big Ten lead 13-10 and Navy dropped Pitt from the all-winning brigade 24-12.

These results likely will have considerable effect on the Top Ten ratings in the next vote. Wisconsin was No. 2 and Pitt No. 3 last week.

Harvard ended Darmouth's 15-game winning streak 17-13. North Carolina State beat Duke 21-7 and Memphis State downed Mississippi State 17-10. It was the first defeat for each, although both had been tied.

The weekend results helped clarify various conference races, but didn't settle anything definitely. Three teams are tied for first place in the Big Ten, Southeastern Conference and Big Six. Nebraska and Missouri share the Big Eight lead with Oklahoma only a step behind.

With formidable Rice out of the way, Texas is strongly favored to retain its Southwest Conference title, but it still has to get past Baylor, which passed its way to an impressive 34-7 victory over Texas A&M. The Longhorns didn't defend too well against Rice passes, which were good for 216 yards and a touchdown. Shoeless Tony Crosby's toe accounted for Texas' victory margin with a conversion after Tommy Ford's touchdown and his sixth field goal of the season.

Of the other Top Ten teams, Illinois, No. 4, beat UCLA Friday night 18-12, Mississippi trounced Vanderbilt 24-12, Alabama had some trouble defeating lowly Houston 21-13, Oklahoma routed Kansas State 34-9, Auburn was idle, and No. 9 Northwestern was trimmed 15-7 by Michigan State. Navy's impressive victory over Pitt, engineered by Roger Staubach and a stout defense that picked off four passes, likely will move the Midshipmen up from the No. 10 spot.

Dense Fog Results In Postponement Of Canada Cup Matches

PARIS (AP) — A dense fog which cut visibility to 100 yards blanketed the Saint-Nom-la-Breteche course Sunday and delayed for 24 hours the final round of the Canada Cup International Golf competition.

Now the golfing world must wait at least until Monday to learn whether any two-man team is capable of beating Arnold Palmer and Jack Nicklaus of the United States in a 72-hole showdown.

After three rounds over the 6,834-yard, par 72 layout 12 miles from Paris, the heavily-favored Yanks with a combined score of 416 were tied with a pair of surprising, dark-horse Spaniards, Sebastian Miguel and Ramon Sota.

Brown, Scott Are Ejected For Fighting

NFL's No. 1 Rusher Held To 40 Yards By Twice-Beaten N. Y.

CLEVELAND (AP) — Y. A. Tittle's pinpoint passing, Don Chandler's talented toe and a rugged defense gave New Yorks Giants a 33-6 victory over the Eastern Division leading Cleveland Browns Sunday in a National Football League game.

The twice-beaten Giants tallied the first seven times they had the ball and kept the Browns deep in their own territory until the final six minutes.

The loss was the first for the Browns after six straight victories—and left the NFL without an undefeated team. The Browns now hold a one-game lead over the Giants and St. Louis, tied for second at 5-2.

So devastating was the Giant defense that Frank Ryan, with the best passing percentage in the league, completed only one of nine tosses for a minus-six yardage, and fullback Jim Brown, the league's No. 1 rusher, was limited to 40 yards in nine tries.

Brown was ejected from the game along with Tom Scott, veteran Giant linebacker, when they engaged in some rugged fisticuffs just 52 seconds before the game ended.

Players of both teams got into the fight, but it was quickly quelled by the officials.

Brown To Dial TD Passes Win For Pittsburgh

Pittsburgh Conquers Cowboys, 27 to 21

PITTSBURGH (AP) — Quarterback Ed Brown connected for four touchdown passes—three to Buddy Dial and an 85-yard toss to Red Mack in the closing moments — to earn the Pittsburgh Steelers a 27-21 triumph over the Dallas Cowboys Sunday in a National Football League game.

The four touchdown tosses overshadowed the feat of Billy Howton. He broke the career record of 488 pass receptions by Don Hutson by snaring 7 passes for 103 yards, one a 13-yard touchdown. This gave Howton 490 passes caught in a 12-year career.

The key stopper in the game was a pass interception by Jim Bradshaw in the end zone after Dallas came roaring back with less than two minutes to go the Steelers 17.

Dial caught passes of 83, 25 and 13 yards for touchdowns to keep the Steelers in the running for the Eastern Conference race with a 4-2-1 mark. The loss was Dallas' sixth in seven games.

Dallas got off to a 14-point lead with Don Meridith tossing five yards to Frank Clark and 35 to Lee Folkins for touchdowns before the Steelers finally scored on a 83-yard toss from Brown to Dial.

However, the Steelers apparently refreshed by a second half rain—the first in the city for more than 40 days—came from behind with two touchdowns in the final quarter for the victory.

Hawks Decision Bullets, 123-112

Bob Pettit Leads St. Louis Attack

BALTIMORE (AP) — The St. Louis Hawks went on a second-half scoring spree to hand the Baltimore Bullets a 123-112 National Basketball Association defeat Sunday night.

Bob Pettit scored 31 points to lead the Hawks, who were tied 55-55 at the end of the first half. Led by Pettit and Richie Guerin, the Hawks outscored the Bullets 14-4 in the first four minutes of the third period and were off to the races.

Rookie Gus Johnson, enjoying his best night as a pro, scored 34 points. He was injured with 6:03 remaining and left the game.

The Bullets, paced by Johnson, Don Kojis and Rod Thorn, cut the margin to 114-97 with 5:30 to go in the game. Pettit, who was taken out at the start of the fourth period, returned with 4:18 left.

The Bullets drew to within nine points at 119-110 with 1:36 to go but Pettit got three key rebounds in the last 40 seconds to stop a Baltimore drive.

Packers Beat Baltimore, 34-20; Giants Trounce Browns, 33-6

Pitts' 34-Yard Touchdown Run Defeats Colts

Green Bay Cops 6th Straight, Remains Tied With Chicago

By GEORGE BOWEN

BALTIMORE (AP) — Halfback Elijah Pitts, one of two substitutes in the backfield, raced 34 yards for a touchdown late in the fourth quarter Sunday to give the Green Bay Packers a 34-20 victory over the Baltimore Colts.

The victory was the sixth straight for the substitute-stocked Packers and tied them for first place in the Western Conference of the National Football League with the Chicago Bears, their opening day conqueror.

Pitts was playing for Tom Moore, who was inactivated by a pinched nerve in his neck. His touchdown run, set up with a great block by guard Fred Thurston, broke a 20-20 tie which the Colts had forged on 17 points in the last half.

Fullback Jim Taylor added his second touchdown on a 17-yard run after the Colts failed to make a first down on their 20 when Henry Jordan brought down quarterback John Unitas in his tracks.

John Roach, playing quarterback for the injured Bart Starr, kept the Packers moving and threw an 11-yard touchdown pass to Marv Fleming, Utah rookie at end for Ron Kramer who hurt a knee early in the first half.

Fleming's touchdown, Taylor's first TD on a plunge and a 46-yard field goal by Jerry Kramer provided Green Bay with a 17-3 halftime lead. During the wild second quarter, the Packers lost fumbles on the Colt 5 and 3. They intercepted two passes and recovered a Colt fumble.

The Colts, who could make only two first downs in the first half, came to life in the third quarter and scored a touchdown in six plays covering 80 yards. Unitas threw 13 yards over the goal to Lenny Moore to reduce the score to 20-10.

Jim Martin made it 20-13 with his second field goal after the Colts were denied a chance for a touchdown when Unitas was penalized for intentionally grounding the ball.

The Colts tied the score on a 48-yard pass play, John Mackey making a spectacular overhead catch.

After Jordan blocked an attempted 47-yard field goal by Martin, the Packers were moved into winning position for Pitts' run on a pass interference call against Lenny Lyles on Max McGee.

Roach completed nine passes in 20 attempts for 156 yards and one touchdown. He had two passes intercepted.

Fort Hill Wins Seventh, Ridgeley Edges LaSalle

Frostburg Blanks Gallaudet Again; PSC Takes Beating

Fort Hill's high-powered Sentinels, barreling along toward an unbeaten season, trounced South Hagerstown 34-0 Saturday night in the Hub City for their seventh straight triumph.

Previously unbeaten Romney met disaster Saturday night at Front Royal, Va., dropping a 19-13 decision to John S. Mosby Academy. Meyersdale whipped Shade Township, 38-0, for its eighth straight 1963 conquest.

Ridgeley High made an early touchdown stand up for a 7-0 victory over LaSalle in a PVC tussle under the stadium lights.

Frostburg State College hopped back on the victory trail over the weekend, blanking Gallaudet College 19-0 in the Bison's Homecoming game at Washington. Wesley College of Dover (Del.) spoiled Potomac State's Homecoming, crushing the Catamounts 52-13.

In a battle of unbeaten but once-tied teams at Shepherdstown, the Shepherd Rams nosed out Western Maryland College, 14-10.

North Carolina School for the Deaf romped to a 43-12 win over West Virginia School for the Deaf Saturday afternoon at Romney.

Chalking up 20 points in the first period, Fort Hill had a surprisingly easy time of it against the Rebels. The victory was Fort Hill's fourth in as many CVAL starts and left South with a 1-2-1 league record.

Halfback Rich Robinson scored on a 60-yard punt return and a seven-yard rush, and passed 15 yards to Wally Harper for another score. Gene Zais got off a 61-yard punt return for a touchdown and Jim Mertens, who kicked four extra points, sneaked over from the one-foot line for the Sentinel's final tally.

Ridgeley's blackhawks scored the first time they got their hands on the ball, then withstood repeated threats by the Explorers in notching their fifth win in eight starts and handing LaSalle its sixth loss in seven tries.

The Blackhawks took over on the LaSalle 16 after the latter team lost the ball on downs when a bad pass from center prevented Jim Hudson from getting off a punt. Jim Bauman took the ball over from the two four plays later and Tony Amato added the point from placement.

Quarterback George Allen, filling in for the ailing Charlie Robinson, fired three touchdown strikes as Frostburg State upped its record to 4-2 and beat Gallaudet for the second time this year. The Bobcats downed the Bisons, 27-0, at Frostburg on October 4.

Allen, a sophomore, hit Joe Nicewarner twice on scoring aerials covering 38 and 50 yards, and connected with Ed Shoup on a 37-yarder.

Unbeaten Wesley, ranked second nationally among junior colleges, exploded for four second period touchdowns after a scoreless stalemate in the first quarter.

An 87-yard kickoff return by Dave Smith and a 50-yard return to paydirt of a pass interception by Bruce Marine highlighted the Delaware eleven's sixth straight 1963 vistory and 14th over a two-season span.

Bert Holcomb passed 32 yards to Bob Thorn for one PSC TD and plunged over from the two for the other. The loss was the fifth in six games for the Catamounts and their second in Tri-State Conference competition.

Ex-Ridgeley High gridder Frank Lambert—in his only appearance in the game—passed 11 yards to Charlie Lutman for a touchdown to give Shepherd its come-from-behind win over the Terrors.

Shepherd's other score came on an 11-yard pass from Ashley Scarborough to Wayman Everly. Torry Confer scored on a plunge and Wilford Wrightson booted a 26-yard field goal for the losers.

Romney High School was knocked from the unbeaten ranks Saturday night at Front Royal, Va., where John S. Mosby Academy halted the Pioneers' seven-game winning streak, 19-13.

Each team tallied once in the second period and they left the field at halftime in a 6-6 deadlock, but the Rangers added a touchdown in the third frame and another in the fourth before Romney closed out the scoring.

Jerry Shuffler rambled 36 yards for a six-pointer after recovering Jerry Mezzatesta's fumble, and also crossed the goal on a four-yard run. Rig Burroughs, son of head coach Jack Burroughs, accounted for the Virginians' other TD on a 14-yard scamper.

Joe Breinig charged nine yards for Romney's initial tally and Don Wade connected with Robert Wolford on a 19-yard touchdown pass in the final period.

Pioneer coach Roger Parker selected senior Jim Alkire as his "back of the week" and named sophomore defensive guard Roy Bennett "lineman of the week."

List Of Perfect Record Teams Sliced To Four Over Weekend

Wisconsin, Pitt Among Five Losing For First Time

By HUGH FULLERTON JR.
Associated Press Sports Writer

On the kind of day that makes "upset" sound slightly ridiculous in reference to college football, Wisconsin, Pittsburgh, Dartmouth, Mississippi State and Duke suffered their first defeats of the season. Notre Dame, Southern Methodist, Florida and Northwestern, among others, received rather unforseen setbacks.

The result left mighty Texas, Auburn, Princeton and Bowling Green as the only major college teams still unbeaten and untied.

Mississippi and unheralded Memphis State remained undefeated, although they played a scoreless tie against each other early in the season. And things are looking up for such once-beaten teams as Ohio State, Oklahoma, Missouri, Louisiana State, Navy, Syracuse and twice-beaten Southern California.

Texas fans chanted "We're No. 1" as the Longhorns eked out a 10-6 victory over Rice Saturday night. They probably were right, but it wasn't an easy game. Auburn didn't play last weekend, Princeton overpowered Cornell 51-14 to go to the top of Ivy League and Bowling Green scored its sixth this season and its eighth straight, 18-3, over Kent State to take over with the longest current major college winning streak.

Ohio State knocked Wisconsin's defending champions out of the Big Ten lead 13-10 and Navy dropped Pitt from the all-winning brigade 24-12.

These results likely will have considerable effect on the Top Ten ratings in the next vote. Wisconsin was No. 2 and Pitt No. 3 last week.

Harvard ended Darmouth's 15-game winning streak 17-13. North Carolina State beat Duke 21-7 and Memphis State downed Mississippi State 17-10. It was the first defeat for each, although both had been tied.

The weekend results helped clarify various conference races, but didn't settle anything definitely. Three teams are tied for first place in the Big Ten, Southeastern Conference and Big Six. Nebraska and Missouri share the Big Eight lead with Oklahoma only a step behind.

With formidable Rice out of the way, Texas is strongly favored to retain its Southwest Conference title, but it still has to get past Baylor, which passed its way to an impressive 34-7 victory over Texas A&M. The Longhorns didn't defend too well against Rice passes, which were good for 216 yards and a touchdown. Shoeless Tony Crosby's toe accounted for Texas' victory margin with a conversion after Tommy Ford's touchdown and his sixth field goal of the season.

Of the other Top Ten teams, Illinois, No. 4, beat UCLA Friday night 18-12, Mississippi trounced Vanderbilt 24-12, Alabama had some trouble defeating lowly Houston 21-13, Oklahoma routed Kansas State 34-9, Auburn was idle, and No. 9 Northwestern was trimmed 15-7 by Michigan State. Navy's impressive victory over Pitt, engineered by Roger Staubach and a stout defense that picked off four passes, likely will move the Midshipmen up from the No. 10 spot.

Dense Fog Results In Postponement Of Canada Cup Matches

PARIS (AP) — A dense fog which cut visibility to 100 yards blanketed the Saint-Nom-la-Breteche course Sunday and delayed for 24 hours the final round of the Canada Cup International Golf competition.

Now the golfing world must wait at least until Monday to learn whether any two-man team is capable of beating Arnold Palmer and Jack Nicklaus of the United States in a 72-hole showdown.

After three rounds over the 6,834-yard, par 72 layout 12 miles from Paris, the heavily-favored Yanks with a combined score of 416 were tied with a pair of surprising, dark-horse Spaniards, Sebastian Miguel and Ramon Sota.

Bears Defeat Eagles, 16-7

Passing Of Wade Features Victory

CHICAGO (AP)—Bill Wade's passes stoked up touchdown drives of 80 and 67 yards Sunday and launched the Chicago Bears to a 16-7 victory over the Philadelphia Eagles to keep a share of the Western Conference lead of the National Football League.

The victory gave the Bears a 6-1 record, the same as the Green Bay Packers who defeated Baltimore 34-20.

Chicago grabbed a 10-0 lead in the first quarter on Roger LeClerc's 45-yard field goal and a 67-yard thrust in seven plays, capped by Wade's 23-yard scoring shot to Joe Marconi.

The Eagles sliced the margin to 10-7 at the half on a 70-yard march. Sub quarterback King Hill's three tosses to Pete Retzlaff were good for 30 yards and his five-yard pitch to Tommy McDonald climaxed it.

The Bears' clincher came at the end of an 80-yard march including passes to Mike Ditka and Marconi for 70 yards. Willie Gallimore went across from the 7. Bob Jencks, kick hit the goal post.

Howe Ties Record

DETROIT (UPI)— The Montreal Canadiens, despite a third period goal by Gordie Howe which tied Maurice (Rocket) Richard's all-time record of 544, whipped the Detroit Red Wings 6-4 in a lop - sided National Hockey League contest.

Brown To Dial TD Passes Win For Pittsburgh

Pittsburgh Conquers Cowboys, 27 to 21

PITTSBURGH (AP) — Quarterback Ed Brown connected for four touchdown passes—three to Buddy Dial and an 85-yard toss to Red Mack in the closing moments — to earn the Pittsburgh Steelers a 27-21 triumph over the Dallas Cowboys Sunday in a National Football League game.

The four touchdown tosses overshadowed the feat of Billy Howton. He broke the career record of 488 pass receptions by Don Hutson by snaring 7 passes for 103 yards, one a 13-yard touchdown. This gave Howton 490 passes caught in a 12-year career.

The key stopper in the game was a pass interception by Jim Bradshaw in the end zone after Dallas came roaring back with less than two minutes to go the Steelers 17.

Dial caught passes of 83, 25 and 13 yards for touchdowns to keep the Steelers in the running for the Eastern Conference race with a 4-2-1 mark. The loss was Dallas' sixth in seven games.

Dallas got off to a 14-point lead with Don Meridith tossing five yards to Frank Clark and 35 to Lee Folkins for touchdowns before the Steelers finally scored on a 83-yard toss from Brown to Dial.

However, the Steelers apparently refreshed by a second half rain—the first in the city for more than 40 days—came from behind with two touchdowns in the final quarter for the victory.

Brown, Scott Are Ejected For Fighting

NFL's No. 1 Rusher Held To 40 Yards By Twice-Beaten N. Y.

CLEVELAND (AP) — Y. A. Tittle's pinpoint passing, Don Chandler's talented toe and a rugged defense gave New Yorks Giants a 33-6 victory over the Eastern Division leading Cleveland Browns Sunday in a National Football League game.

The twice-beaten Giants tallied the first seven times they had the ball and kept the Browns deep in their own territory until the final six minutes.

The loss was the first for the Browns after six straight victories—and left the NFL without an undefeated team. The Browns now hold a one-game lead over the Giants and St. Louis, tied for second at 5-2.

So devastating was the Giant defense that Frank Ryan, with the best passing percentage in the league, completed only one of nine tosses for a minus-six yardage, and fullback Jim Brown, the league's No. 1 rusher, was limited to 40 yards in nine tries.

Brown was ejected from the game along with Tom Scott, veteran Giant linebacker, when they engaged in some rugged fisticuffs just 52 seconds before the game ended.

Players of both teams got into the fight, but it was quickly quelled by the officials.

Hawks Decision Bullets, 123-112

Bob Pettit Leads St. Louis Attack

BALTIMORE (AP) — The St. Louis Hawks went on a second-half scoring spree to hand the Baltimore Bullets a 123-112 National Basketball Association defeat Sunday night.

Bob Pettit scored 31 points to lead the Hawks, who were tied 55-55 at the end of the first half. Led by Pettit and Richie Guerin, the Hawks outscored the Bullets 14-4 in the first four minutes of the third period and were off to the races.

Rookie Gus Johnson, enjoying his best night as a pro, scored 34 points. He was injured with 6:03 remaining and left the game.

The Bullets, paced by Johnson, Don Kojis and Rod Thorn, cut the margin to 114-97 with 5:30 to go in the game. Pettit, who was taken out at the start of the fourth period, returned with 4:18 left.

The Bullets drew to within nine points at 119-110 with 1:36 to go but Pettit got three key rebounds in the last 40 seconds to stop a Baltimore drive.

St. Patrick's Captures CYL Football Championship For Tenth Time

Fighting Irish Score 39-13 Win Over Dutchmen

The Fighting Irish of St. Patrick's romped to a 39-13 triumph over SS. Peter and Paul yesterday afternoon at Mt. Calvary Field to wrap up the championship of the Catholic Youth Football League one week before the season ends.

For the Irish, coached by Harold (Buck) Shober and his assistant Charles Storer, the title is their tenth in 18 years of CYL competition dating back to 1946. St. Patrick's has won seven championships outright and shared the laurels three other years.

St. Patrick's is unbeaten in five games with one contest remaining, while SS. Peter and Paul has a 3-2 mark. Both of the Flying Dutchmen's losses were at the hands of the Irish.

St. Mary's stopped St. Michael's, 19-0, in yesterday's other league contest at Marydale.

Blough Scores Thrice

Fullback Byron Blough rambled for three touchdowns to head a St. Patrick's attack that broke the game wide open in the second period.

Blough, the league's leading scorer, tallied on runs of eight, five and three yards. Glenn Cross returned a punt 40 yards to paydirt and also scored on a three-yard thrust. George Geatz accounted for the winner's other TD on a three-yard run.

The Flying Dutchmen, who yielded one score in the first period but fell behind 26-6 at the half, picked up single six-pointers in the second and fourth frames.

Kyle Geatz passed 29 yards to Gene Bittner for the first counter and Tim Finan raced 42 yards for the second.

First Half Splurge

St. Mary's did all their scoring in the first half in notching victory number two against three defeats.

Sam Perlozzo made the first two touchdowns on dashes of 18 and 14 yards, and Steve Cornachia added the other from five yards out.

Whereas last season St. Patrick's and SS. Peter and Paul waged a terrific duel before finally sharing the league championship, the Irish dominated the picture this year. They beat the Dutchmen, 33-26, in their first meeting.

The league winds up its 1963 campaign next Sunday.

Romney 8th In Class AA

Mountaineer Rated Seventh In Class A

PARKERSBURG, W. Va. (UPI) —Buckhannon has taken the lead in the Triple-A West Virginia high school football race while Winfield has moved out in front in Class A with Ceredo-Kenova remaining atop the double-A heap.

Executive Secretary W. Gordon Eismon of the State Secondary Schools Activities Commission said Sunday Weirton, the leader all season, dropped to fourth place in the triple-A division by virtue of its 20 - 18 loss to East Liverpool, Ohio.

Winfield clobbered double - A Hamlin 34-0 to move ahead of Buffalo of Putnam, a 25-0 victor over Crum, in the "small school" race.

Unbeaten Buckannon rolled over Fairmont East 27-0 to take the triple-A lead with a 14.1 rating, followed by Charleston at 13.9, Welch 12.7, Weirton 12.6, East Bank 12-3 and Clarksburg Victory 12.1.

But the standings could take another shakeup this week when Buckhannon takes on Victory. Victory is undefeated but was tied 13-13 in its first games with Clarksburg Notre Dame.

Ceredo-Kenova posted a 13-0 win over Buffalo of Wayne to keep its hold on the double-A lead with a 12.4 ranking.

However, New Martinsville moved into second place with a 12.2 rating by defeating Moundsville 19-6 while Hinton dropped to third place at 11.5 after being tied 20-20 by Gauley Bridge.

Summersville is fourth at 11.4, followed by Williamson 11, St. Marys 10.5, Kingwood 10.3 and Romney 10.

In third place in the Class A division is Northfork-Elkhorn at 9.3, Paden City 9.2, Green Bank 9, Union 8.9, and Mountaineer of Davis 8.5.

Rudolph Cops Fresno Open

13-Under-Par 275 Wins $3,500 Purse

FRESNO, Calif. (AP) — Mason Rudolph scored his first professional golfing victory in nearly four years Sunday with a wire-to-wire three-stroke triumph in the $25,000 Fresno Open.

The bespectacled 29-year-old former Memphis State College star wrapped up the $3,500 first place money with a closing round of 35-36—71 over the 7,181-yard par 36-36—72 San Joaquin Country Club course. That gave him 66-67-71-71—275 total, 13 under par.

Rudolph enetred the final day with a three-stroke margin over Tommy Aaron. He quickly went five ahead and sewed up the title at the 575-yard third hole. Rudolph dropped a 10-foot birdie putt after Aaron, playing a threesome ahead, had bogied the hole with a poor pitch shot into a sand trap.

Aaron came back strong on the back nine and finished at 37-34-71 for a 278 total. But after holding undisputed second place for three rounds he had to share it with Al Geiberger. Geiberger shot the day's best round, 34-33—67, and deadlocked Aaron with a 15-foot birdie putt at the final hole.

Cardinals Sink Redskins, 21-7

Johnson's Passes Produces Three TDs

WASHINGTON (AP)—Charley Johnson pitched three touchdown passes and the St. Louis defense handcuffed fumbling Washington Sunday as the Cardinals whipped the Redskins 21-7.

The Card quarterback connected on 18 of 30 passes for 284 yards, including touchdown tosses of 28 yards and 54 yards to Sonny Randle and 14 to Bobby Joe Conrad.

He had three passes intercepted by Redskin defenders, but a stumbling Washington offense failed to cash in on the scoring opportunities.

Washington marched 71 yards with the opening kickoff, but Dick James, workhorse of the drive, fumbled on the Cardinal 2 and St. Louis took over.

Johnson then drove his team 98 yards for a touchdown in 15 plays. The payoff was a 14-yard pass to Conrad.

Johnson took the Cardinals to another touchdown at the start of the third, a 41-yard pass to Jackie Smith and a 28-yard toss to Randle.

Early in the fourth quarter, Johnson connected with his 54-yard toss to Randle.

The final Cardinal score followed an interception of a George Izo pass. Izo had replaced Redskin quarterback Norman Snead a few plays earlier.

Next time the Redskins got the ball Izo took them 50 yards for a touchdown, tossing 28 yards to Pat Richter for the touchdown.

St. Patrick's Captures CYL Football Championship For Tenth Time

The Fighting Irish of St. Patrick's romped to a 39-13 triumph over SS. Peter and Paul yesterday afternoon at Mt. Calvary Field to wrap up the championship of the Catholic Youth Football League one week before the season ends.

For the Irish, coached by Harold (Buck) Shober and his assistant Charles Storer, the title is their tenth in 18 years of CYL competition dating back to 1946. St. Patrick's has won seven championships outright and shared the laurels three other years.

St. Patrick's is unbeaten in five games with one contest remaining, while SS. Peter and Paul has a 3-2 mark. Both of the Flying Dutchmen's losses were at the hands of the Irish.

St. Mary's stopped St. Michael's, 19-0, in yesterday's other league contest at Marydale.

Blough Scores Thrice

Fullback Byron Blough rambled for three touchdowns to head a St. Patrick's attack that broke the game wide open in the second period.

Blough, the league's leading scorer, tallied on runs of eight, five and three yards. Glenn Cross returned a punt 40 yards to paydirt and also scored on a three-yard thrust. George Geatz accounted for the winner's other TD on a three-yard run.

The Flying Dutchmen, who yielded one score in the first period but fell behind 26-6 at the half, picked up single six-pointers in the second and fourth frames.

Kyle Geatz passed 29 yards to Gene Bittner for the first counter and Tim Finan raced 42 yards for the second.

First Half Splurge

St. Mary's did all their scoring in the first half in notching victory number two against three defeats.

Sam Perlozzo made the first two touchdowns on dashes of 18 and 14 yards, and Steve Cornachia added the other from five yards out.

Whereas last season St. Patrick's and SS. Peter and Paul waged a terrific duel before finally sharing the league championship, the Irish dominated the picture this year. They beat the Dutchmen, 33-26, in their first meeting.

The league winds up its 1963 campaign next Sunday.

Romney 8th In Class AA

Mountaineer Rated Seventh In Class A

PARKERSBURG, W. Va. (UPI) —Buckhannon has taken the lead in the Triple-A West Virginia high school football race while Winfield has moved out in front in Class A with Ceredo-Kenova remaining atop the double-A heap.

Executive Secretary W. Gordon Eismon of the State Secondary Schools Activities Commission said Sunday Weirton, the leader all season, dropped to fourth place in the triple-A division by virtue of its 20 - 18 loss to East Liverpool, Ohio.

Winfield clobbered double - A Hamlin 34-0 to move ahead of Buffalo of Putnam, a 25-0 victor over Crum, in the "small school" race.

Unbeaten Buckannon rolled over Fairmont East 27-0 to take the triple-A lead with a 14.1 rating, followed by Charleston at 13.9, Welch 12.7, Weirton 12.6, East Bank 12-3 and Clarksburg Victory 12.1.

But the standings could take another shakeup this week when Buckhannon takes on Victory. Victory is undefeated but was tied 13-13 in its first games with Clarksburg Notre Dame.

Ceredo-Kenova posted a 13-0 win over Buffalo of Wayne to keep its hold on the double-A lead with a 12.4 ranking.

However, New Martinsville moved into second place with a 12.2 rating by defeating Moundsville 19-6 while Hinton dropped to third place at 11.5 after being tied 20-20 by Gauley Bridge.

Summersville is fourth at 11.4, followed by Williamson 11, St. Marys 10.5, Kingwood 10.3 and Romney 10.

In third place in the Class A division is Northfork-Elkhorn at 9.3, Paden City 9.2, Green Bank 9, Union 8.9, and Mountaineer of Davis 8.5.

Hundred Dick Groat Admirers Expected At Testimonial Fete

Cards' Shortstop To Be Honored On Wednesday

One hundred or more local and area baseball fans, and Dick Groat admirers in particular, are expected to attend a testimonial dinner for the popular St. Louis Cardinal shortstop Wednesday at the Cumberland Country Club.

The dinner will get under way at 6:30 p. m. and will be preceded by a cocktail hour at 5:30. Tickets, which are priced at $10.00, may be purchased in advance or at the door.

Clifton Van Roby, local sportscaster and a personal friend of Groat, will act as toastmaster.

Tommy Powers, former allround athlete at Allegany High School who was a baseball teammate of Groat's at Duke University, is scheduled to speak. Powers is presently serving as deputy solicitor for the U. S. Department of Labor.

Al Abrams, sports editor of the Pittsburgh - Post - Gazette, is also expected to attend the testimonial.

Following the presentation of a gift by J. Suter Kegg, sports editor of the Cumberland Evening and Sunday Times, Groat will address the guests and preside over a question-and-answer session.

Groat first came to Cumberland in 1953 to play basketball against the Cumberland Old Germans. He has returned here many times since and has acquired countless friends in the Tri-State area, many of whom will be in attendance at Wednesday's get-together.

Rudolph Cops Fresno Open

13-Under-Par 275 Wins $3,500 Purse

FRESNO, Calif. (AP) — Mason Rudolph scored his first professional golfing victory in nearly four years Sunday with a wire-to-wire three-stroke triumph in the $25,000 Fresno Open.

The bespectacled 29-year-old former Memphis State College star wrapped up the $3,500 first place money with a closing round of 35-36—71 over the 7,181-yard par 36-36—72 San Joaquin Country Club course. That gave him 66-67-71-71—275 total, 13 under par.

Rudolph enetred the final day with a three-stroke margin over Tommy Aaron. He quickly went five ahead and sewed up the title at the 575-yard third hole. Rudolph dropped a 10-foot birdie putt after Aaron, playing a threesome ahead, had bogied the hole with a poor pitch shot into a sand trap.

Aaron came back strong on the back nine and finished at 37-34-71 for a 278 total. But after holding undisputed second place for three rounds he had to share it with Al Geiberger. Geiberger shot the day's best round, 34-33—67, and deadlocked Aaron with a 15-foot birdie putt at the final hole.

Cardinals Sink Redskins, 21-7

Johnson's Passes Produces Three TDs

WASHINGTON (AP)—Charley Johnson pitched three touchdown passes and the St. Louis defense handcuffed fumbling Washington Sunday as the Cardinals whipped the Redskins 21-7.

The Card quarterback connected on 18 of 30 passes for 284 yards, including touchdown tosses of 28 yards and 54 yards to Sonny Randle and 14 to Bobby Joe Conrad.

He had three passes intercepted by Redskin defenders, but a stumbling Washington offense failed to cash in on the scoring opportunities.

Washington marched 71 yards with the opening kickoff, but Dick James, workhorse of the drive, fumbled on the Cardinal 2 and St. Louis took over.

Johnson then drove his team 98 yards for a touchdown in 15 plays. The payoff was a 14-yard pass to Conrad.

Johnson took the Cardinals to another touchdown at the start of the third, a 41-yard pass to Jackie Smith and a 28-yard toss to Randle.

Early in the fourth quarter, Johnson connected with his 54-yard toss to Randle.

The final Cardinal score followed an interception of a George Izo pass. Izo had replaced Redskin quarterback Norman Snead a few plays earlier.

Next time the Redskins got the ball Izo took them 50 yards for a touchdown, tossing 28 yards to Pat Richter for the touchdown.

Sandra Haynie Takes Tourney

Wins Thunderbird With Score of 286

PHOENIX, Ariz. (AP) — Sandra Haynie of Fort Worth, Tex., fired a one-under-par 71 in the final round Sunday to win the $11,00 0 Thunderbird Open Ladies Golf Tournament.

The slender, sweet - swinging Texan fashioned a four-day 286 —four strokes ahead of defending champion Kathy Whitworth of Jal, N.M.

It was the 20-year-old Miss Haynie's first win on the tour since June 1962 when she took the Cosmopolitan Open in Rockton, Ill. The triumph was worth $1,350.

Berlin, Pa., Man Leaves $200,000 To Gettysburg

College Names Building For Him

A Somerset County, Pa., man's will has left an estimated $200,000 to Gettysburg College, according to Dr. C. A. Hanson, College president.

Fred G. Masters of Berlin' Pa., provided the bequest. A former educator and banker and a 1904 graduate of Gettysburg College, he died January 22.

The new physics building at Gettysburg College officially will be named Masters Hall as a memorial to Mr. Masters in a brief ceremony at 11 a.m. Saturday during homecoming weekend.

Mr. Masters was a science and mathematics teacher for 45 years. He taught at Meyersdale, Connellsville and at Fifth Avenue High School in Pittsburgh from 1909 until he retired as vice principal in 1945.

The Masters bequest will play a major role in the long range development program of the college to increase endowment.

The physics building four instructional laboratories, a research and special project laboratory, two seminar rooms, a dark room, machine shop, electronics store room, library, classroom, a lecture hall seating 347 and six offices for faculty members of the physics department. New and modern fixtures and equipment have been installed throughout.

The group is divided into two sections — those taking pre-professional courses and those majoring in regular subjects.

In nine pre-professional courses 45 students have enrolled; engineering 15; dental six; law six; medicine three; pharmacy two; optometry two; agriculture one; medical technology four and nursing three.

In other subjects biology leads with 30, mathematics 14, history 10, English 14, physics six, chemistry nine, social studies four, psychology 10, French three, geography two, political science three, philosophy one, economics 11, Spanish one, sociology nine, art two and music two.

Twenty-five students have registered for liberal arts but are undecided on their major at this date.

With the new organization as a liberal arts college, President Hardesty has pointed out that every effort will be made to place any of the students who graduate in the program the same as efforts have been made in the past and will continue in the future to aid graduates in the teacher education program to secure positions.

Tower And Operator

Mrs. Rettie Mae Hennen of Warrior Mountain poses for her picture near the top of the 110-foot tower, pictured at left, from which she watches for "smokes" that mean forest fires. One of three tower operators in Allegany County, Mrs. Hennen has kept watch for the State Department of Forests and Parks for the past eight years.

Forest Watchers Keep A High, Lonely Vigil

By BERNARD E. SITTER
News Managing Editor

The tower is 110 feet tall, and the bright silvery paint on its steel angle-iron frame glitters in the afternoon sunlight above the 2,135-foot peak of Warrior Mountain south of Flintstone.

At the very top is an eight-foot-square wood and glass cab which sways gently with the autumn breeze. Inside, a cheerful grandmother lays aside her embroidery to welcome visitors through the trapdoor in the floor of her enclosure.

Mrs. Rettie Mae Hennen, glad for company in her lonely perch, offers a guest book which emphasizes the loneliness of her job. The book shows the signatures of only seven previous visitors during 1963.

She has operated the forest fire lookout tower for the Department of Forests and Parks for eight years, watching for "smokes" that mean fire somewhere in the woods.

"Look over there to the west. That's Dan's Mountain. Over here," pointing east - northeast, "There's Town Hill. Look real hard, now. There's a white building. That's Town Hill Hotel."

The View From The Top

Both mountains have lookout towers, the only others in Allegany County. On a clear day Thomas Lohr, who operates the Dan's Mountain tower, and Mrs. Tom Dixon, who keeps the Town Hill tower, both can see Mrs. Hennen's tower. The three of them can see all of Allegany County, parts of Garrett and Washington counties, and a good bit of Pennsylvania and West Virginia besides.

Mrs. Hennen's tower is only 14 miles by road from Baltimore Street in Cumberland, but the scenery must be pretty much as the Indians would have found it if they had built towers. The top of the Cumberland Narrows pokes its distinctive outline up from behind Irons Mountain, but Cumberland isn't visible. Neither is Flintstone, obscured by the northern end of the ridge where the tower stands.

Only a few roads and farms are visible to show that anybody lives in Allegany County. A mile or so to the northeast is the farm where Mrs. Hennen and her husband live, the house where he was born.

Every morning for nearly five months of each year, Mrs. Hennen climbs the steep and rocky hillside road to the tower, pauses to catch her breath, then starts the long climb up more than 100 stairsteps to the top of the tower, where she will spend the rest of the day. She has brought her lunch and some embroidery or quilting.

From a telephone in the cab she notifies the forestry office in LaVale that she has opened the tower for the day. Generally, the time is 10 a. m. She will be in the tower until 6 p. m. with only the telephone and her sewing for company. There is plenty of time.

Most of the time she's looking out the windows, but occasionally she picks up her sewing for relaxation. "My, you should see the quilts I've made up here!"

Her routine is the same each day during spring and fall forest fire seasons. These run from mid-March to the end of May and from early October to mid-December. During dry periods, it's a seven-day-a-week job, as it has been this year since October 5. Only a soaking rain or snow-covered ground can mean a day off for the tower operators.

Do the height and loneliness of the tower bother her? Not much. She began climbing the tower as a girl of 20 to visit the former operator, also a woman. Only when ice forms on the steps and railings does she mind the climb up and down.

"It gets kind of monotonous sometimes, but I guess any job does."

When the phone isn't ringing the forest is so quiet she can hear acorns and nuts falling off the tall oaks, the hickories and walnuts far below.

The Forestry Department has been expanding its tower radio network but the Warrior Mountain tower has only the telephone, from which Mrs. Hennen can call Town Hill or Dan's Mountain towers or the forestry office in LaVale.

Six Towers In Garrett

Six towers watch over Garrett County. One of them, on the peak of Snaggy Mountain, actually is located over the line in Preston County, W. Va. Thayerville is the main or "dispatching" tower for Garrett County, as Dan's Mountain is for Allegany County.

There are no towers in Washington County, because Mrs. Dixon at Town Hill and the operator of the Lamb's Knoll tower in Frederick County can see most of Washington County.

Some towers are operated by men who have regular maintenance or other jobs with the Forestry Department. Others are operated by women who live near the towers, like Mrs. Hennen and Mrs. Dixon. The Foxville tower in Frederick County is operated by a 19-year-old girl who lives on a nearby farm.

The basic tools of the fire watcher are a pair of sharp eyes. Each tower is equipped with a pair of binoculars and an alidade, a rotating sighting bar mounted on a circular map of the territory that can be seen from the tower, so that the operator can describe direction and distance when a smoke is sighted.

Mrs. Hennen doesn't have much use for the binoculars, and like many tower operators she rarely needs the alidade. She can pinpoint the location of a smoke because she knows the countryside so well, having lived there ever since she came to the mountain from Pendleton County, W. Va. as a small girl.

At 6 p. m. she takes a final look around, checks out of the tower by telephone, records the time in her logbook, and, lunch bucket under one arm, starts down the long stairs toward her home.

'Trick Or Treat' For UNICEF

Many children in the local area will be dressing in their Halloween costumes this week to participate in the "trick or treat" appeal for contributions to UNICEF. Shown above (left to right) are Joyce and Jimmy Streett, children of Mr. and Mrs. Eugene Streett, Christie Road, and Becki Barnes, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Richard Barnes, Fort Avenue, members of Melvin Methodist Church Youth Fellowship, as they will look when they join many other young members of area churches to "treat" needy children throughout the world. Each church group has been assigned to a designated territory, and the children will be identified by tags and special UNICEF containers.

Midland Girl Wins Essay, Poster Event

School Winners Also Designated

Mary Frances Devlin, pupil at St. Joseph's Catholic Church, Midland, has been named winner of both the essay and poster contest in Allegany County parochial schools sponsored by Victor Tambolleo Post 1712, Catholic War Veterans.

Leo J. Seibert, third vice commander of the post who is in charge of the youth program, said last night the winners in the various schools throughout the county were announced yesterday afternoon at the social center of St. Patrick's Church.

The entries of the individual winners of each school will be forwarded to Baltimore to compete in the state competition sometime next month.

The Christian Brothers of La-Salle High School during the past week judged the entries of the various schools.

Essay winners in other schools as announced yesterday include: Richard Harrison, SS. Peter and Paul; Mary Eileen May, St. Mary's; Carol Chaney, St. Patrick's; Patricia Yantz, St. Patrick's, Mt. Savage, and Kathleen Aldom, St. Michael's in Frostburg.

Poster winners include Pamela Merritt, St. Mary's; Kathleen Aldom, St. Michael's; Michael Carter, St. Patrick's, Mt. Savage; Mary Ann Kelly, St. Patrick's, city; and Rozann Dashiell, SS. Peter and Paul.

The theme of the essay was "You — Christ's Image Before Your Neighbor," and the poster theme was "Keeping Christ In Christmas."

Mr. Seibert will present plaques to Miss Devlin.

Rain Falls First Time This Month

The Cumberland section finally received some rain yesterday, but it was only of small benefit and just helped settle some of the dust.

A few light showers fell about 1 p. m. yesterday and it rained again for a short time about 7:30 p. m. However, several hours after last night's rainfall everything was dry again and there was little evidence any rain had fallen.

Yesterday's rain was the first noted in October and the last since late in September, which also was a very dry month. Last month only 1.73 inches fell here compared with a September average of 3.02 inches.

The area has been experiencing a drought which has been termed the worst in 20 years. It has caused many streams and ponds in the section to dry up and a portion of the drinking water supply in the Mt. Savage area has been termed unsuitable for drinking by the Allegany County Health Department.

Farmers also have been affected by the prolonged dry spell and have had to haul water on trucks for cattle and other livestock.

Actually the drought began in April and in succeeding months since then rainfall has been below normal in each month.

The forecast for today calls for cloudy and cooler, but no rain is predicted.

Student Body Head Resigns At Frostburg

Hardesty States College Viewpoint

Jerry Howie, president of the Student Government at Frostburg State College, resigned his elective position Saturday because of what he claimed was "pressure on me exerted by President (R. Bowen) Hardesty.

Mr. Hardesty issued a statement last night saying "If Mr. Jerry Howie has convinced himself that he cannot accept seriously responsibilities and give leadership to the student body in accordance with the stated philosophy of the College and policies as stated in the Student Handbook, then he has done right in resigning as president of Student Government."

Mr. Howie met Friday with Mr. Hardesty, Ivan C. Diehl, dean of academic affairs; Miss Betty Williams, business office, and Mrs. Marguerite Hughes, administrative assistant.

Howie States View

During this meeting, Mr. Howie says in his letter of resignation to the student Government and student body of the college, "I was told that I was not a statesman, I talk out of both sides of my mouth, and along with 30 other students, I was instilling fear in the student body."

Mr. Hardesty's statement says Friday's discussion centered "around Mr. Jerry Howie's being more realistic and business-like in his operations throughout this academic year." Several incidents which involved Mr. Howie were pointed out to him during the meeting "as past illustrations of wherein he (Mr. Howie) needs to face up today to a more realistic approach to life and be a leader."

Mr. Howie's letter of resignation also cited the use by President Hardesty of Mr. Howie's attempt to steal a five-cent package of ice cream in November 1962 as a threat.

President Hardesty in his statement said reference to the ice cream incident was made at Friday's meeting. He added the incident was discovered and witnessed by a finance officer of the college's business office. Mr. Hardesty said the volume of ice cream is not significant, but the principle of the then vice president of Student Government attempting the act is significant.

Mr. Howie's letter of resignation stated "Also, I was told this condition of fear on campus was my responsibility and I mu. clear it up before a conference is held with newspaper reporters at a later date."

Mr. Hardesty's release says "It was explained to Mr. Howie that several reporters desire an interview this week and he would be asked to sit with the administration in granting the interview relative to what Mr. Jerry Howie had termed fear."

Fear Discussed

On the matter of fear, Mr. Hardesty's statement said that "Relative to alleged fear to which Mr. Jerry Howie refers, he was advised if fear exists he is probably a part of it—that probably he has not forgotten his acts last year nor probably feels satisfied with his operation this academic year.

"In addition, he and the group present discussed alleged fear probably spread by 30 students now on disciplinary probation for their acts last May or which occurred earlier in the year. Any student respecting the philosophy of the College and the policies stated in the Student Handbook has no reason to fear anything."

The college president's statement concluded with "The administrators will work with the president of Student Government or vice president of Student Government and Student Government 'with no broken link in the chain' provided the philosophy of the college and policies of the Student Handbook are implemented on and off campus."

Tower And Operator

Mrs. Rettie Mae Hennen of Warrior Mountain poses for her picture near the top of the 110-foot tower, pictured at left, from which she watches for "smokes" that mean forest fires. One of three tower operators in Allegany County, Mrs. Hennen has kept watch for the State Department of Forests and Parks for the past eight years.

Forest Watchers Keep A High, Lonely Vigil

By BERNARD E. SITTER
News Managing Editor

The tower is 110 feet tall, and the bright silvery paint on its steel angle-iron frame glitters in the afternoon sunlight above the 2,135-foot peak of Warrior Mountain south of Flintstone.

At the very top is an eight-foot-square wood and glass cab which sways gently with the autumn breeze. Inside, a cheerful grandmother lays aside her embroidery to welcome visitors through the trapdoor in the floor of her enclosure.

Mrs. Rettie Mae Hennen, glad for company in her lonely perch, offers a guest book which emphasizes the loneliness of her job. The book shows the signatures of only seven previous visitors during 1963.

She has operated the forest fire lookout tower for the Department of Forests and Parks for eight years, watching for "smokes" that mean fire somewhere in the woods.

"Look over there to the west. That's Dan's Mountain. Over here," pointing east-northeast, "There's Town Hill. Look real hard, now. There's a white building. That's Town Hill Hotel."

The View From The Top

Both mountains have lookout towers, the only others in Allegany County. On a clear day Thomas Lohr, who operates the Dan's Mountain tower, and Mrs. Tom Dixon, who keeps the Town Hill tower, both can see Mrs. Hennen's tower. The three of them can see all of Allegany County, parts of Garrett and Washington counties, and a good bit of Pennsylvania and West Virginia besides.

Mrs. Hennen's tower is only 14 miles by road from Baltimore Street in Cumberland, but the scenery must be pretty much as the Indians would have found it if they had built towers. The top of the Cumberland Narrows pokes its distinctive outline up from behind Irons Mountain, but Cumberland isn't visible. Neither is Flintstone, obscured by the northern end of the ridge where the tower stands.

Only a few roads and farms are visible to show that anybody lives in Allegany County. A mile or so to the northeast is the farm where Mrs. Hennen and her husband live, the house where he was born.

Every morning for nearly five months of each year, Mrs. Hennen climbs the steep and rocky hillside road to the tower, pauses to catch her breath, then starts the long climb up more than 100 stairsteps to the top of the tower, where she will spend the rest of the day. She has brought her lunch and some embroidery or quilting.

From a telephone in the cab she notifies the forestry office in LaVale that she has opened the tower for the day. Generally, the time is 10 a. m. She will be in the tower until 6 p. m. with only the telephone and her sewing for company. There is plenty of time.

Most of the time she's looking out the windows, but occasionally she picks up her sewing for relaxation. "My, you should see the quilts I've made up here!"

Her routine is the same each day during spring and fall forest fire seasons. These run from mid-March to the end of May and from early October to mid-December. During dry periods, it's a seven-day-a-week job, as it has been this year since October 5. Only a soaking rain or snow-covered ground can mean a day off for the tower operators.

Do the height and loneliness of the tower bother her? Not much. She began climbing the tower as a girl of 20 to visit the former operator, also a woman. Only when ice forms on the steps and railings does she mind the climb up and down.

"It gets kind of monotonous sometimes, but I guess any job does."

When the phone isn't ringing the forest is so quiet she can hear acorns and nuts falling off the tall oaks, the hickories and walnuts far below.

The Forestry Department has been expanding its tower radio network but the Warrior Mountain tower has only the telephone, from which Mrs. Hennen can call Town Hill or Dan's Mountain towers or the forestry office in LaVale.

Six Towers In Garrett

Six towers watch over Garrett County. One of them, on the peak of Snaggy Mountain, actually is located over the line in Preston County, W. Va. Thayerville is the main or "dispatching" tower for Garrett County, as Dan's Mountain is for Allegany County.

There are no towers in Washington County, because Mrs. Dixon at Town Hill and the operator of the Lamb's Knoll tower in Frederick County can see most of Washington County.

Some towers are operated by men who have regular maintenance or other jobs with the Forestry Department. Others are operated by women who live near the towers, like Mrs. Hennen and Mrs. Dixon. The Foxville tower in Frederick County is operated by a 19-year-old girl who lives on a nearby farm.

The basic tools of the fire watcher are a pair of sharp eyes. Each tower is equipped with a pair of binoculars and an alidade, a rotating sighting bar mounted on a circular map of the territory that can be seen from the tower, so that the operator can describe direction and distance when a smoke is sighted.

Mrs. Hennen doesn't have much use for the binoculars, and like many tower operators she rarely needs the alidade. She can pinpoint the location of a smoke because she knows the countryside so well, having lived there ever since she came to the mountain from Pendleton County, W. Va. as a small girl.

At 6 p. m. she takes a final look around, checks out of the tower by telephone, records the time in her logbook, and, lunch bucket under one arm, starts down the long stairs toward her home.

Midland Girl Wins Essay, Poster Event

School Winners Also Designated

Mary Frances Devlin, pupil at St. Joseph's Catholic Church, Midland, has been named winner of both the essay and poster contest in Allegany County parochial schools sponsored by Victor Tambolleo Post 1712, Catholic War Veterans.

Leo J. Seibert, third vice commander of the post who is in charge of the youth program, said last night the winners in the various schools throughout the county were announced yesterday afternoon at the social center of St. Patrick's Church.

The entries of the individual winners of each school will be forwarded to Baltimore to compete in the state competition sometime next month.

The Christian Brothers of LaSalle High School during the past week judged the entries of the various schools.

Essay winners in other schools as announced yesterday include: Richard Harrison, SS. Peter and Paul; Mary Eileen May, St. Mary's; Carol Chaney, St. Patrick's; Patricia Yantz, St. Patrick's, Mt. Savage, and Kathleen Aldom, St. Michael's in Frostburg.

Poster winners include Pamela Merritt, St. Mary's; Kathleen Aldom, St. Michael's; Michael Carter, St. Patrick's, Mt. Savage; Mary Ann Kelly, St. Patrick's, city; and Rozann Dashiell, SS. Peter and Paul.

The theme of the essay was "You — Christ's Image Before Your Neighbor," and the poster theme was "Keeping Christ In Christmas."

Mr. Seibert will present plaques to Miss Devlin.

Rain Falls First Time This Month

The Cumberland section finally received some rain yesterday, but it was only of small benefit and just helped settle some of the dust.

A few light showers fell about 1 p. m. yesterday and it rained again for a short time about 7:30 p. m. However, several hours after last night's rainfall everything was dry again and there was little evidence any rain had fallen.

Yesterday's rain was the first noted in October and the last since late in September, which also was a very dry month. Last month only 1.73 inches fell here compared with a September average of 3.02 inches.

The area has been experiencing a drought which has been termed the worst in 20 years. It has caused many streams and ponds in the section to dry up and a portion of the drinking water supply in the Mt. Savage area has been termed unsuitable for drinking by the Allegany County Health Department.

Farmers also have been affected by the prolonged dry spell and have had to haul water on trucks for cattle and other livestock.

Actually the drought began in April and in succeeding months since then rainfall has been below normal in each month.

The forecast for today calls for cloudy and cooler, but no rain is predicted.

Student Body Head Resigns At Frostburg

Hardesty States College Viewpoint

Jerry Howie, president of the Student Government at Frostburg State College, resigned his elective position Saturday because of what he claimed was "pressure on me exerted by President (R. Bowen) Hardesty.

Mr. Hardesty issued a statement last night saying "If Mr. Jerry Howie has convinced himself that he cannot accept seriously responsibilities and give leadership to the student body in accordance with the stated philosophy of the College and policies as stated in the Student Handbook, then he has done right in resigning as president of Student Government."

Mr. Howie met Friday with Mr. Hardesty, Ivan C. Diehl, dean of academic affairs; Miss Betty Williams, business office, and Mrs. Marguerite Hughes, administrative assistant.

Howie States View

During this meeting, Mr. Howie says in his letter of resignation to the student Government and student body of the college, "I was told that I was not a statesman, I talk out of both sides of my mouth, and along with 30 other students, I was instilling fear in the student body."

Mr. Hardesty's statement says Friday's discussion centered "around Mr. Jerry Howie's being more realistic and business-like in his operations throughout this academic year." Several incidents which involved Mr. Howie were pointed out to him during the meeting "as past illustrations of wherein he (Mr. Howie) needs to face up today to a more realistic approach to life and be a leader."

Mr. Howie's letter of resignation also cited the use by President Hardesty of Mr. Howie's attempt to steal a five-cent package of ice cream in November 1962 as a threat.

President Hardesty in his statement said reference to the ice cream incident was made at Friday's meeting. He added the incident was discovered and witnessed by a finance officer of the college's business office. Mr. Hardesty said the volume of ice cream is not significant, but the principle of the then vice president of Student Government attempting the act is significant.

Mr. Howie's letter of resignation stated "Also, I was told this condition of fear on campus was my responsibility and I mu. clear it up before a conference is held with newspaper reporters at a later date."

Mr. Hardesty's release says "It was explained to Mr. Howie that several reporters desire an interview this week and he would be asked to sit with the administration in granting the interview relative to what Mr. Jerry Howie had termed fear."

Fear Discussed

On the matter of fear, Mr. Hardesty's statement said that "Relative to alleged fear to which Mr. Jerry Howie refers, he was advised if fear exists he is probably a part of it—that probably he has not forgotten his acts last year nor probably feels satisfied with his operation this academic year.

"In addition, he and the group present discussed alleged fear probably spread by 30 students now on disciplinary probation for their acts last May or which occurred earlier in the year. Any student respecting the philosophy of the College and the policies stated in the Student Handbook has no reason to fear anything."

The college president's statement concluded with "The administrators will work with the president of Student Government or vice president of Student Government and Student Government 'with no broken link in the chain' provided the philosophy of the college and policies of the Student Handbook are implemented on and off campus."
